2 CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: Good morning
3 and welcome to today's Finance Committee hearing.
4 My name is Domenic M. Recchia, Jr. I'm the 5 chairman of this wonderful committee. This 6 hearing is being held jointly with the Committee
7 on Community Development, Chaired by my colleague
8 and good friend from Brooklyn, Council Member Al 9 Vann.

10 I want to thank everyone for 11 joining us today on this lovely Friday morning.
12 Before I move further, I'd like to introduce all 13 my colleagues who have joined us here today. We 14 have Julissa Ferreras and we have Ruben Wills.

15 Today, we'll consider Proposed 16 Intro 26-A, which would extend the Finance
17 Commissioner's authority to sell tax liens as well 18 as the authority to conduct standalone lien sales 19 on emergency repair charges and removes the global 20 exclusions of HDFCs from the lien sale.

21 While this legislation provides the 22 commissioner with broad authority over the types 23 of liens that can be sold on certain properties, 24 this legislation also incorporates protection to 25 ensure the city's low to moderate income property

2 owners and affordable housing stock are protected 3 while at the same time encouraging people to pay 4 back their debts.

5           In 1996, the Commissioner of 6 Finance was granted the authority to sell 7 delinquent property taxes as well as other 8 charges, including water and sewer liens when 9 their property taxes were also delinquent. HDFCs 10 were excluded from lien sales. In 1997, '99, 11 2001, 2003, 2004, 2006 and again in 2007, the 12 Council extended the commissioner's authority to 13 sell these tax liens.

14           Under Local Law 68 of 2007, the 15 commissioner was granted the authority to sell 16 standalone water liens. In other words, 17 individuals with a lien on their property for only 18 delinquent water debt would be eligible to have 19 their lien sold to a trust. In the 2007
20 legislation, all single family homeowners in Class 21 1 were exempt from standalone water liens.
22 Certain senior, disabled and low income homeowners
23 owning two or three-family properties in Class 1 24 were also exempt from the lien sale if they only 25 had water debt.

2 While the 2007 legislation
3 decreased the delinquency rate for the non-payment 4 of water and sewer charges, we have learned that 5 the law disproportionately affected seniors as 6 well as low and moderate income property owners of 7 two and three-family homes in communities of 8 color.

9 In response, in May 2010, this 10 committee along with the Committee on Community 11 Development chaired by Al Vann, held a hearing on 12 Intro 26, which provided protections for 13 individuals included in the lien sale for 14 delinquent water and sewer charges. Some of the 15 protections included increasing the threshold from 16 a property that could be sold for water charges 17 from one to three years, increasing the monetary 18 threshold from $1,000 to $3,000. The bill also 19 excluded individuals receiving enhanced STaR or 20 veteran's exemption from the lien sale who had 21 delinquent water charges.

22 Since the hearing, we have heard a 23 lot. We have been working closely with all the 24 agencies involved. We have learned that 25 individuals who were noticed for sale, or had

2 their property sold, found it difficult to pay off
3 their debt because of the high interest rate 4 associated with the debt, lack of affordable 5 payment plans and lack of communication between 6 the homeowner and the servicer once the lien was 7 sold.

8 We also learned that many 9 individuals who owed thousands of dollars in debt 10 to the city have escaped the lien sale because 11 they did not have a separate property tax lien or 12 separate water lien. Under current law, liens 13 from charges owed to the city cannot be sold 14 unless such liens also have a real property tax 15 component or water charge component.

16 In the fall of 2010, the 17 Administration presented the Council with a 18 proposal. The proposal would have done several 19 things regarding the lien sales. It would have 20 extended the Commissioner's authority to sell lien 21 sales for four years. Two: included all HDFCs in 22 the lien sale if they had delinquent charges.
23 Three: decreased the threshold that triggers when 24 a property tax lien could be sold from three years
25 to one year and $1,000. Four: allowed all liens

2 for charges owed to the city to be sold in the 3 lien sale even if they did not have a property tax 4 component.

5                   While this bill did a lot of 6 things, it did not do one very important thing.
7 It did not include any of my colleague Councilman 8 Al Vann's protections that were included in the 9 2010 legislation.

10                   Now, let's talk about the bill
11 before us today. The 2010 bill amended the 2010
12 legislation to reflect all of Councilman Vann's 13 original provisions regarding the water charges
14 and protections for homeowners, which I will defer 15 to Councilman Vann and pass him the mike to 16 discuss.

17                   CHAIRPERSON VANN: Thank you,
18 Chairman Recchia. Good morning. As he indicated, 19 I am Council Member Vann, Chair of the Committee
20 on Community Development. I'm very pleased to co-
21 chair, if you will, with Chairman Domenic Recchia 22 and members of the Committees on Finance and 23 Community Development for this joint hearing on 24 Intro 26-A.

25                   The bill was originally introduced

2 in 2009 as Proposed Intro 1071-A, during the 3 Council's past legislative session. It was re-
4 introduced in February 2010 as Intro 26-A. A
5 hearing was held on the bill this past May.

6 Since that time, Intro 26-A has 7 been substantially revised to include 8 comprehensive reforms aimed at protecting 9 economically vulnerable homeowners. In addition, 10 the bill adds new categories of city liens that 11 would be subject to the annual lien sale:

12 Emergency Repair program liens and also HDFCs.

13 Chairman Recchia has pretty much 14 discussed the new lien sale categories. I will 15 focus my comments on the water lien provisions of 16 the bill.

17 Back in 2007, during the beginning 18 of the financial crisis, I voted against the 19 Council's legislation that created standalone
20 water liens. During that time, I had concerns 21 about the potential economic burden that this new 22 type of lien could place on homeowners and 23 communities already facing high rates of 24 unemployment and foreclosure.

25 In 2009, my office began receiving

1 reports from advocates about seniors with unpaid
2 water bills who were being included in the lien 3 sale. Many for delinquency amounts that was 4 minimal in relation to the value of their homes.
5 Low income homeowners, including seniors and 6 disabled persons were intended to be excluded from 7 the lien sale through their enrollment in certain 8 homeowner tax exemption programs.

10 What we learned, after the law's 11 enactment, was that many eligible homeowners were 12 not enrolled in these programs, which is currently 13 required in order to be exempted.

14 Since that time, to their credit, 15 the Department of Finance and the Department of 16 Environmental Protection have developed ways to 17 prevent vulnerable homeowners from needlessly 18 entering the lien sale.

19 Intro 26-A codifies a number of 20 these agency procedural changes. The bill 21 requires coordination between the Department of 22 Finance and the Department of Environmental 23 Protection to streamline customer service delivery
24 to lien sale eligible New Yorkers. It increases 25 delinquency threshold amounts. It provides more

2 notice, from 90 days to 120 days. It requires 3 first notice by certified mail, versus the current 4 requirement of first notice by publication in the 5 newspaper. It exempts enrolls and those who are 6 eligible to be enrolled in certain homeowner
7 exemption programs. It also requires the creation 8 of a means-based payment plan to give homeowners 9 an affordable way to pay off their debt.

10 Through our research, we also 11 learned that once a lien has been sold to a city 12 trust, homeowners were faced with severe charges 13 and high interest fees, with few lines of 14 communication with debt servicers.

15 The Committee on Community
16 Development held an oversight hearing on September 17 28th, 2010, to review post-lien sale fees and 18 found out that lien sale debts, in some instances, 19 were doubling in one year's time, due to the post-20 lien sale servicer's interest rate of 18 percent, 21 city delinquency surcharge of 5 percent and 22 nondescript lien servicer fees.

23 Intro 26-A helps homeowners after 24 their liens have been sold as well. The post-lien 25 sale provision of this bill makes it easier and

2 more affordable for a homeowner to pay off their 3 lien once it has been sold. The bill improves
4 communication with lien servicers by requiring DEP 5 and DOF to serve as liaison between and owner and 6 the servicer. The bill also makes more
7 transparent lien servicer fees by requiring them 8 to be itemized on the actual bill.

9           And finally, Intro 26-A adjusts the 10 post-lien servicer interest rate by linking it to 11 the Banking Commission's rate for delinquent 12 property taxes, which will, in fact, lessen the 13 overall costs of the lien once it has been sold.
14 That is for the majority of homeowners.

15           The set of comprehensive reforms 16 built into Intro 26-A are both socially and 17 fiscally responsible. While Intro 26-A adds 18 provisions to protect our city's most vulnerable 19 homeowners from the financial risk posed by the 20 lien sale, the bill strikes a balance. It 21 authorizes the sale of certain municipal liens, 22 which have proven to be an effective tool for city
23 debt collection. As proposed, Intro 26-A is a 24 bill that is socially and financially a win/win.

25           I'm very pleased to serve as lead

2 sponsor on this bill, with Chairman Recchia. I've 3 worked diligently to craft, over the past two 4 years, a bill with advocates, including NEDAP, 5 South Brooklyn Legal Services, Legal Aid Society, 6 Queens Legal Services and Council Finance staff.
7 I look forward to the testimony for OMB,
8 Department of Finance, HPD, DEP, legal advocates, 9 and housing groups, all of them. This is an 10 excellent bill. I want to thank all of the 11 advocates for their participation and support as 12 we move through this day. Thank you very much.
13 Chairman?

14 CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: Thank you,
15 Council Member Al Vann. Before I move forward, I 16 want to recognize we've been joined by Diana 17 Reyna, Oliver Koppell and Lewis Fidler.

18 I want to just describe for the 19 public and for all of my colleagues, I want to 20 make it clear that the city sells a lien on the 21 property. The city does not sell the property at 22 the lien sale. After the sale, owners will still 23 have the right to possession and title of their 24 property until they pay off their debt or until a 25 prescribed time has passed without payment from the owner.

When an individual owes a debt to the city that is unpaid and delinquent, a lien can be placed on the property for which the debt was accrued. Prior to 1996, a certain time period of unpaid debt, the city would be able to start foreclosure proceedings on the property if the debt remained unpaid. This process is known as the In Rem program. However, the In Rem program was very expensive to the city, because the city had to maintain the properties once they were in the city's possession.

Not only did the In Rem program fail to address the underlying reasons for tax delinquency and abandonment, the city was unable to quickly resell the properties to responsible private owners. As a result, many properties remained in the city for over 30 years before they were sold.

In 1996, all this changed with the lien sale. Instead of the city taking possession of a property, once a property was in arrears, the city would sell the liens to a private party, a trust, which then hired collection agencies,

2 called servicers, to enforce the debt owed to the 3 trust. Once the lien is sold to the trust, the 4 property owner can enter into a payment plan with 5 the servicers to satisfy the debt, which now rests 6 with the trust.

7 By law, once the city sells the 8 lien to the trust, foreclosure proceedings can 9 only begin if the owner remains delinquent and has 10 not entered into a payment plan, or has paid the 11 interest on the liens for at least seven months.

12 In the case of Class 1, the 13 timeframe is one year. The Administration tells 14 us, the Finance Division confirms that out of 15 approximately 25,000 properties that are placed on 16 the lien sale list each year, an average of 22 17 properties actually result in foreclosure, which 18 on an average occurred after two to four years
19 from the date of sale. The remaining properties 20 are removed from the lien sale list because they 21 either satisfy their debt, entered into a payment 22 plan, or qualified for an exemption.

23 I want to explain that process to 24 the public and to my colleagues so they can 25 understand that the lien sale or threat thereof is

2 a tremendous enforcement tool for delinquent bill 3 payers and in most instances do not result in 4 foreclosure.

5 I just want to quickly go over the 6 HDFCs. The HDFCs, Housing Development Fund
7 Corporations, are housing units incorporated under 8 state law to provide affordable housing in the 9 form of co-ops or rentals. In 1997, one year 10 after the first year of lien sales, all HDFCs were 11 excluded from the lien sales. What this means is 12 that HDFCs were able to accrue a substantial 13 amount of debt without ever going to the lien
14 sale.

15 As a result, currently there are 16 over 2,000 HDFC properties with delinquent city 17 debt, either for property, water, emergency 18 repairs or some other charge, with outstanding 19 arrears totaling approximately $27 million. In 20 order to encourage debt payment by HDFC, the bill 21 before us today allows HDFC rental properties to 22 be included in the lien sale. Condos and co-ops 23 will remain exempt.

24 We allowed rentals to be included
25 in the lien sale because on the Emergency Tenant

2 Protection Act once an HDFC is sold in 3 foreclosure, the new owner of the HDFC building is 4 required to maintain affordable rents for the 5 renters who remain in the HDFC rental building.
6 However, there is no such protection for co-op or 7 condo owners. To protect the affordable housing 8 stock in New York City, we excluded co-op and 9 condo owners from the lien sale.

10 Under this bill, only liens on 167
11 HDFC rental properties would be eligible for the 12 sale. These properties will not be eligible for 13 the lien sale until next year and their threshold 14 for inclusion in the lien sale would be two years
15 and $5,000.

16 Beginning in April, HPD would have 17 to notify HDFC rental units of the Commissioner's 18 new authority to sell HDFC rentals. We hope this 19 will allow them to prepare financially and begin 20 payment plan arrangements with the respective 21 agencies. Commissioner Cestero will describe how 22 HPD will work with these buildings to help them do 23 so.

24 Another provision of the bill I
25 want to highlight is the inclusion of Emergency

2 Repair charges as standalone liens. Out of all 3 the property-related debt owed to the city,
4 Emergency Repair charges account for over 38
5 percent of the debt. While emergency repairs done 6 by HPD are for repairs that directly affect the 7 health and safety of building residents, many 8 property owners, particularly owners of rental 9 buildings, not only fail to perform necessary 10 repairs on the property to keep their tenants 11 safe, but they also did not repay the city when 12 the city made the repairs for them.

13           So this bill today would allow 14 liens for emergency repair charges to be sold as 15 standalone when they exceed $2,000 and have been 16 delinquent for two years. All Class 1 residential 17 properties would be excluded, with the exception 18 of non-owner occupied three-family homeowners who 19 are in the Alternative Enforcement Program, a 20 program where HPD intervenes with multi-family 21 buildings with excessive hazardous building 22 violations.

23           More information is provided in 24 your briefing materials provided by the division 25 staff known as the "Lien Team." I want to thank

2 them: Tanisha Edwards, Anthony Brito, Emre Edev, 3 and Kate Seeley Kirk. They've done a great job on 4 this legislation. I also want to thank the 5 Housing Committee staff and the Community
6 Development staff as well as the policy division 7 who have done a great job in this issue.

8 I also would like to recognize and 9 just make a statement. I want to thank my 10 colleague, Julissa Ferreras, because in this bill 11 we included a certain part. We inserted a 12 provision in the bill that requires DEP to place 13 disputed status online so customers will be 14 updated of the status of the dispute. This part 15 we think is very, very important. I want to thank 16 Julissa for adding that provision.

17 Before we let our wonderful 18 commissioners testify here today, I want to 19 recognize Helen Foster and Jimmy Oddo.

20 At this time, my colleague Ruben
21 Wills would like to make a short statement.

22 COUNCIL MEMBER WILLS: Good
23 morning. As many of you know, my district was one 24 of the hardest hit from the foreclosure crisis and 25 the unemployment rate due to the economic crisis.

2 I would just like to express this morning my 3 appreciation on behalf of my constituents as 4 whole, but especially on behalf of the seniors, 5 single-parent households, veterans and those who 6 have fallen into dire economic straits.

7 This bill will go a long way to 8 make sure that those who have found themselves 9 trying to hold onto the American Dream of home 10 ownership will not be victimized once again.

11 The Chairs Recchia and Vann have 12 done a tremendous job on this bill. I just want 13 to thank you on behalf of the constituents in my 14 district.

16 very much. John, do you want to start first?
17 Then we'll have HPD and then we'll leave it up to 18 Finance and DEP. I want to thank all of you for 19 being here this morning.

20 JOHN GRATHWOL: Good morning, 21 Chairman Recchia, Chairman Vann and members of the 22 committee. I'm John Grathwol, Assistant Director 23 of Tax Policy, Revenue Forecasting and Economic 24 Analysis Task Force at the New York City Office of 25 Management and Budget. In this position, I

2 oversee forecast of the City's $42 billion tax 3 revenue budget. As part of that job, I also 4 oversee forecasts of the proceeds from the City's 5 tax lien program. Thank you for inviting me to 6 testify this morning on behalf of OMB Director

8                   Before I turn my attention to Intro
9 26-A, the bill before your committees today, I 10 would like to review with you some background 11 about the lien sale and its history. Forgive me 12 if I duplicate some of the Chairman's comments, 13 but I think it's important.

14                   Prior to the lien sale, the City's 15 primary collection enforcement tool was the In Rem 16 program, which allowed the city to take ownership 17 of properties in debt. Despite the fact that 18 these properties owed on average only $36,000 in 19 back taxes when taken in rem, the cost averaged 20 $2.2 million per building to acquire, manage, 21 renovate and return to the tax scrolls through a
22 sale.

23                   In the early 1990s, the City
24 determined that it could no longer afford the high 25 cost associated with the in rem program. The lien

2 sale program was implemented in 1996. Prior to 3 its inception, similar programs were established 4 in many cities, including Philadelphia and 5 Washington, D.C. The lien sale program goal has 6 always been to reduce the cost associated with 7 collecting outstanding property tax, water and 8 other municipal debt while increasing the overall 9 collection rates.

10 Since 1996, when the Council first 11 authorized the City to sell tax liens, the Council 12 has passed ten Local Laws extending, amending or 13 expanding the lien sale program. The authority to 14 sell tax liens was expanded three times, in 1997, 15 2001 and 2007.

16 Over this long successful history,
17 the annual tax lien program has completed over 16
18 bond sales, totaling over $1.5 billion in bond 19 proceeds and residual payments. Since 20 implementation, the City has received over $5 21 billion in additional property tax and water 22 payments, as a result of increased voluntary 23 compliance due to the program.

24 Most recently, in December of 2007, 25 the Council passed legislation expanding the

2 City's authority to sell standalone water charges 3 on two and three-family homes and Class 1 and 4 Class 2 condo and co-op and condo properties.
5 This authority helped raise the water-only lien 6 sale revenues to nearly $300 million over the last 7 three years.

8           The lien sale program has been a 9 successful and important tool for the City's 10 collections effort. The strength of the lien sale 11 program as a voluntary compliance mechanism is 12 demonstrated by the recent results of the program.
13 Over the last three years, about 25,000 parcels 14 with delinquent liens were contacted on the 15 initial noticing date. By the time the 90-day 16 notice period had expired, only about 5,000 liens 17 remained to be sold to the tax lien trust.

18           Most of the noticed parcels, about 19 20,000, were removed from the sale prior to the 20 sale date. Of these, about 15,000 were removed 21 because taxpayers paid off their debt or entered 22 into payment plans with the city. The remaining 23 5,000 were removed because of the added safeguard 24 of statutory exclusions, HPD discretionary 25 exclusions and other corrective removals.

2           The history of the last three years 3 also demonstrates that the protections built into 4 the current lien program: noticing prior to lien 5 sale, statutory exclusions for needy taxpayers and 6 servicer actions after the sale result in very 7 disclosures. Of the roughly 5,000 liens sold to 8 the trust in recent years, the vast majority pay 9 their delinquent tax and water debt, including the 10 associated fees and penalties, and do not lose 11 ownership of their properties.

12           Only about 42 tax liens per year 13 for all property tax classes were sold at 14 foreclosure auctions in the last three years.
15 This is out of the roughly 5,000 liens sold to the 16 trust each year. This is less than one percent.
17 Results for one to three-family homes are even 18 smaller. On average, only about ten properties 19 per year were sold at foreclosure auctions in the 20 last three years.

21           Now, by way of review, let me 22 explain how the lien sale program works with 23 respect to property taxes. Very similar 24 procedures apply to water liens, but in the 25 interest of time, I'll focus on property taxes.

As you all know, this is a complicated business.

The city law allows the city to sell the right to collect the outstanding property or water debt. This is a key point. When we sell a lien, we're not selling the property. We're selling the right to collect the debt. Properties that do not pay their tax on time are in danger of having a lien sold if they meet the following criteria for the property tax.

For one, two and three-family homes, residential condos and cooperative apartments an owner is at risk is he or she owes more than $1,000 in property tax and it has been delinquent for at least three years.

For commercial condos, apartment buildings, utility properties and commercial buildings, an owner is at risk if he or she owes more than $1,000 for at least one year.

As a built-in safeguard, the typical homeowner will receive at least 12 quarterly stating their property tax, past due balance or debt, before they are entered into the lien sale process. That's four notices per year for three years, before entering the lien sale process.

Once the lien sale process begins, the city will contact the affected property owners as a further safeguard at least three additional times with targeted messages. The City Department of Finance sends delinquent owners a notice of our intent to sell the lien if they do not resolve their debt within 90 days. Finance also publishes the list of properties in a local, major daily newspaper, places ads in other daily newspapers and community papers across the city and posts the list on the Finance website.

Thirty days later, the Finance sends another second notice to owners. Thirty days after that Finance sends a third notice. Ten days before the sale, Finance publishes an updated list in the newspapers.

In addition, Finance conducts outreach meetings at various communities across the city, informing taxpayers of the lien sale program and payment plans are offered to needy taxpayers. Finally, the City sells a lien for all the properties that have failed to address their debt.

2 This past year, of the 25,000
3 properties initially noticed, roughly 5,000 had 4 the lien actually sold. The sale is technically a 5 transfer of the debt to a trust. Once the lien is 6 sold, it is no longer an asset owned by the city.
7 Depending upon the year, the trust in turn pays 8 the city 70-80 cents on the dollar upfront for the 9 debt that is sold.

10 The trust funds the payment to the 11 city by selling bonds backed by the debt and the 12 value of the associated properties. The trust 13 relies on servicers to collect the debt, and the 14 amounts collected are used to redeem the bonds 15 issued by the trust.

16 As the city no longer owns the 17 property tax and water delinquencies, the actions 18 of the servicers are governed by a servicing 19 agreement between the servicers and the trust.

20 In addition, the Real Property
21 Actions and Proceedings law of the State of New 22 York and the Civil Practice Law and rules of the 23 State of New York govern the actions of the 24 servicers with regard to foreclosure practices.
25 Once the bonds are redeemed through the collection

2 of the debt by the lien servicers, the City 3 receives the remaining residual collections on the 4 property tax and water debt.

5 Lien servicers are selected by the 6 city on behalf of the trust ever several years 7 through an RFP process. The servicers are 8 required to submit an annual audit on agreed upon 9 procedures that meet the city's standards of 10 conduct. The servicers pursue outstanding debt by 11 sending letters and starting foreclosure
12 proceedings in court. The servicers also offer 13 delinquent taxpayers the opportunity to enter into 14 an installment plan.

15 Liens accrue interest at interest
16 rates prescribed in the Local Law. The lien sale 17 was designed so the cost of collecting the 18 delinquent debt is borne by those who do not pay 19 their property tax, water bills and other 20 municipal charges rather than by city taxpayers 21 and water rate payers who abide by the law.
22 Currently, 98 percent of the property tax is paid
23 on time and 88 percent of DEP water accounts pay 24 their balance within two billing cycles.

25 We prefer to collect delinquent

2 charges without having to sell a lien. In many of 3 these cases, property owners have received as many 4 as 15 notices but decide to ignore their debts
5 until enforcement action is imminent.

6 The overwhelming majority of owners
7 avoid foreclosure. The lien sale program
8 incorporates a number of safeguard to make it easy 9 for owners to avoid having a lien sold. We offer 10 payment plan agreements to all property owners who 11 have fallen behind on their payments. No needs-12 based test is applied. Property owners and water 13 rate payers can secure a payment plan at any time.

14 We've worked with members of the 15 City Council to conduct outreach sessions in each 16 borough, giving owners a chance to meet with 17 Finance, DEP and HPD after work hours to resolve 18 their debt. Finance and DEP keep offices open 19 late during the notice period to help customers 20 and HPD has joined us in an effort to protect 21 owners against predatory lenders and to offer loan 22 and other advice.

23 We have also targeted those 24 homeowners we believe may be eligible for the 25 senior citizen homeowner exemption or the disabled homeowner exemption and send specialized outreach letters with exemption application forms.

That's an overview of the current program. Now, let me turn my remarks to the proposed legislation before you committee today, Intro 26-A.

The Administration welcomes the expanded authority to sell other municipal charge liens and Housing Development Finance Company liens incorporated in this bill. As you heard at yesterday's budget briefing, despite an improving economy, this city is still facing teacher layoffs and across the board agency expense reduction program announced in November. If the additional state aid sought in the budget announced yesterday fails to materialize, further cuts will be necessary. The city badly needs additional revenue.

However, there are a number of areas where Intro 26-A needs to be improved. As there are a number of Administration officials waiting to follow my testimony, I will restrict my comments to the provisions of the bill that may interfere with a successful securitization of the tax liens.

First, we're particularly concerned about the certified mailing requirement. It is general recognized within the debt collection industry that debtors avoid accepting certified mail from creditors. If a signed receipt of a piece of certified mail is required to make the sale of a lien to the trust valid, the legislation may open a very wide back door to allow delinquent tax or water rate payers to avoid inclusion in the sale.

Second, the legislation provides that certain taxpayer delinquencies, which were initially sold to the trust, will be deemed effective if the taxpayer was eligible for a statutory exclusion. Say, the senior citizen homeowner exclusion, but was not enrolled because the taxpayer had not yet applied.

This proposed authority of the city to remove liens after their sale, based on retroactively applying eligibility rules for certain tax credits may undermine the strength of the true sale between the city and the trust. This makes it more difficult for the city to make

2 a true sale representation at the time of the 3 sale. Having a legal true sale between the city 4 and the trust is crucial to structuring and 5 marketing the bonds.

6 Third, this bill adds significantly
7 to the complexity of the sale criteria. It adds 8 other municipal ERP liens and HDFC liens, property
9 tax, water and ERP, which we welcome. But it 10 applies different aging and minimum threshold
11 criteria. It redefines and increases the aging 12 and minimum thresholds for two and three-family 13 home water liens. It does not allow the sale of 14 all outstanding liens once the property for sale 15 under the various prescribed qualification 16 criteria.

17 All the property's liens, for 18 example, are not put in the sale one the property
19 qualifies. The result is a pool of eligible liens 20 that is much more complex to value than under the 21 current law or under the Administration's 22 proposal.

23 This is likely to have three 24 unforeseen negative consequences. High complexity 25 makes it harder to get a high valuation of the

2 collateral by the rating agencies and bond
3 investors. The likely result will be the city 4 receiving less upfront bond proceeds from the sale 5 of the liens to the trust.

6 High complexity also significantly
7 increases the likelihood of taxpayer confusion.
8 Imagine explaining to one of your constituents the 9 current lien sale eligibility criteria. I have 10 trouble. I've been over this more than a few 11 times, but it's a lot and it's confusing. Now 12 imagine explaining the lien sale eligibility 13 criteria of your proposed bill to this 14 constituent. For the sake of saving time, I won't 15 try and explain those to you now.

16 Finally, high complexity will 17 likely result in an increase in sales in area 18 which would increase the rate of defective liens.

19 Finally, let me briefly review the 20 revenue impact of the bill. The Administration's 21 lien proposal which has already been summarized 22 here today, was conservatively estimated to yield 23 $87 million in additional collections and lien
24 sale proceeds in the first year and about $24 25 million per year in recurring additional funds.

2 Intro 26-A, with no authority to 3 sell single-family water liens, no reduced aging
4 for Class 1 and co-op and condo property tax 5 liens, only partial authority to sell other 6 municipal charge and HDFC liens, reduces this 7 estimated revenue yield to $31 million in the 8 first year and $3 million in recurring collections 9 and lien sale proceeds.

10 The revenue left on the table by 11 Intro 26-A is $56 million in the first year and 12 $21 million in recurring revenues. This estimate, 13 however, is without factoring in the cost of the 14 increased aging criteria, the shortened look back 15 period for ERP liens, the expanded minimum 16 threshold criteria for two and three-family water, 17 ERP and HDFC liens, the vets and enhanced STaR 18 with the senior citizen homeowner income cap times 19 1.5 and the lowering the interest rates, and the 20 additional loopholes created by the bill through 21 principally the certified letter issue and the 22 disputed charge lien removal issue.

23 I have not yet had time to develop 24 a revenue estimate for all of the detailed 25 components of the bill. But if we just look

2 closely at one of the loopholes, it seems clear to 3 me that either the certified letter requirement or 4 the disputed charge lien removal could potentially 5 be large loopholes. If ten percent of taxpayers 6 noticed with the certified letter, for example, 7 refuse to sign the letter, the lien proceeds would 8 decline by $4 million per year.

9           This is baseline lien proceeds that 10 would decline. Just that overwhelms what I've 11 priced the recurring revenue of the Intro 26-A to 12 be. Plus, the city would lose an additional $55 13 million per year in enhanced collections over 14 time. This is just the lost property tax revenue.
15 It would obviously be more once lost water 16 proceeds and enhanced water collections coming 17 from the lien sale were counted.

18           The bottom line is that the 19 loopholes and relaxations in lien eligibility 20 criteria could, if enacted, result in a 21 significant baseline revenue loss at the time the 22 city needs all the revenue that it can get.

have before you today. Thanks.

CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: Thank you.

HPD next. Before you go, Commissioner, I'd like to recognize we've been joined by Joel Rivera.

RAFAEL E. CESTERO: Good morning, Chairman Recchia, Chairman Vann and members of the Finance and Community Development Committees. My name is Rafael E. Cestero and I'm the Commissioner of the Department of Housing Preservation and Development. Thank you for the opportunity to discuss the renewal and amendments to New York City's authority to sell outstanding liens on municipal arrears contained in Intro 26-A.

I would like to begin by saying that I concur with all of the statements made here today by my colleagues and I have appreciated working together with them and their staffs as well as you and your staffs to put this bill together. This legislation is vital to the City's ability to conduct business and I look forward to working with you and your staff to make sure that we find appropriate solutions.

I would like to focus my testimony on two items in Intro 26-A that significantly

2 affect the maintenance and preservation of New 3 York City's housing stock. The first is the 4 establishment of standalone lien authority for the 5 cost the agency incurs in the operation of the 6 Emergency Repair Program, or ERP.

7           As you recall, this proposal was a 8 key component of the proactive preservation
9 initiative we announced last month with Speaker 10 Quinn and Chairman Dilan. ERP allows HPD to 11 intervene to make repairs on residences when 12 owners cannot or will not make the repairs on 13 their own.

14           The cost for these repairs is then 15 billed to property owners, ultimately becoming a 16 lien on the property if left unpaid. Under 17 previous lien sale authority, ERP liens could only 18 be sold to a servicer when the property also had 19 outstanding real estate tax and/or water and sewer 20 liens.

21           This presented a scenario where 22 scofflaw property owners would pay outstanding 23 real estate taxes and water charges while allowing 24 ERP debt to accumulate without any threat of 25 penalty. In essence, it made the city responsible

2 for building maintenance and the corresponding 3 costs. There are currently over 2,400 properties 4 that fall into this potential category, with a 5 total balance of over $31 million in unpaid ERP
6 charges.

7           The authority proposed in Intro 26-
8 A to allow the Department of Finance to sell 9 outstanding ERP liens not only helps the city 10 recoup the funds expended on protecting the 11 habitability of housing units across the city, but 12 also provides an incentive for landlords to 13 maintain their property in good order, reducing 14 the need for ERP altogether.

15           This, coupled with the recent 16 amendments approved by the City Council to the 17 Alternative Enforcement Program, gives us a set of 18 new tools to address some of the most physically 19 distressed buildings in the city and to more 20 aggressively protect our city's housing stock.

21           The standalone lien authority
22 proposed in Intro 26-A would take effect once a 23 property had accumulated a minimum of $2,000 in 24 ERP arrears and had been left unpaid for a minimum 25 of two years. Under these criteria, the city

2 would capture 581 properties with outstanding ERP
3 debt and no corresponding real estate and water 4 debt, totaling over $9.5 million. We feel that 5 the two-year threshold allows recalcitrant owners 6 more time to ignore their buildings while tenants' 7 living conditions continue to degrade.

8 We propose reduce that threshold to 9 one year to capture an additional 363 properties
10 and an additional $9.8 million in outstanding ERP
11 debt. This amended threshold will capture a 12 larger portion of potential bad actors and force 13 as many owners as possible to keep their 14 properties in good repair.

15 Further, requiring such an elevated 16 threshold would only serve to undermine recent 17 amendments made to Local Law 29. In fact, 110
18 buildings currently in the Alternative Enforcement 19 Program would not be captured in the lien sale if 20 the two-year criteria is utilized. Allowing 21 buildings a free pass to accumulate more debt will 22 limit our ability to force owners to make needed 23 improvements and drain our AEP and ERP budgets at 24 a time when city resources are constrained.
25 Practically speaking, the higher the lien value,

2 the more difficult it will be for owners to pay 3 off their debt and get them out of the lien sale 4 altogether.

5           Finally, as you know, HPD has made 6 a significant commitment to preserving the long-7 term viability of the 300,000 units we have 8 invested in over the past 30 years. To do this, 9 we will require new tools to ensure affordability 10 of this stock. Intro 26-A also proposes to remove 11 the existing exclusion from the tax lien sale on 12 Housing Development Fund Corporation, HDFCs
13 operating as rental units. HDFCs are housing 14 units incorporated under state law to provide 15 affordable housing to New York State residents.

16           Under the previous lien sale
17 authority, HDFCs were excluded from the lien sale.
18 Unfortunately, this exclusion has led to a 19 significant accumulation of outstanding tax
20 arrears of the city's HDFCs, with some individual 21 buildings having arrears as high as $5 million.
22 The accumulation of this level of arrears is 23 indicative of a need for an assessment of the 24 buildings financial and physical profile.
25 Removing the statutory exclusion will assist HPD

2 in making contact with these HDFCs in hopes of 3 providing guidance and resources while ensuring 4 they remain in good standing with their municipal 5 debt.

6 For buildings that we have 7 identified as distressed with absentee landlords, 8 the third party transfer program may ultimately be 9 the appropriate vehicle for conveyance to a 10 responsible new owner.

11 We thank you for your efforts in 12 pursuing these amendments and for the opportunity 13 to offer suggestions we think will improve this 14 legislation. Renewal and expansion of the city's 15 ability to sell liens is a vital tool that enables 16 HPD to protect tenant rights as well as to 17 maintain safe residential dwelling units.

18 We welcome any follow-up questions 19 you might have.

20 CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: The 21 Department of Finance? We're going to let all of 22 the commissioners testify and then we'll take 23 questions.

24 DAVID M. FRANKEL: Good morning
25 Chairs Recchia and Vann and members of the Finance

2 and Community Development Committees. I am
3 Finance Commissioner David Frankel. I appreciate 4 greatly the opportunity to be with you this 5 morning to discuss Intro 26-A.

6 Let me first start by saying I join 7 in the comments of Assistant Director Grathwol and 8 Commissioner Cestero and Commissioner Holloway to 9 come.

10 I will try not to be repetitive, 11 although there are some aspects of this that are 12 specific to the Department of Finance.

13 Let me start by saying we must be 14 as aggressive as possible in collecting unpaid 15 funds. I certainly appreciate that the prospect 16 of losing a home or other property is traumatic, 17 that the process must be absolutely fair, and to 18 the extent possible, protect our most vulnerable 19 citizens.

20 However, our focus must be on the 21 overwhelming majority of New Yorkers who pay their 22 taxes, who pay their charges, who pay their fines.
23 They are the ones suffering because of those that 24 don't pay, in the form of increased taxes or 25 reduction of services.

2                   While we will work with individuals 3 who may be in financial distress, we must be sure 4 to collect the money that city residents depend on 5 to provide their services. We must be mindful 6 that every dollar owed that we choose to 7 consciously forego represents a real choice of not 8 funding some other worthwhile service or raising 9 revenue through taxes or some other source.

10                   As has already been outlined, the 11 lien sale is a critical collection tool for New 12 York City. Over the last 15 years, the sale has 13 been a true success story, as we have collected 14 over $1.5 billion in property-related debts 15 efficiently and relatively quickly, not to mention 16 the billions more from people who paid on time 17 because of the strong enforcement threat.

18                   As the lead agency in conducting 19 the annual lien sale, the Finance Department 20 notices thousands of delinquent properties and 21 then works diligently to whittle that list down by 22 sending multiple notices, publishing and 23 republishing lists of delinquent properties, 24 holding outreach sessions with our sister 25 agencies, before we ever get to the act of selling a lien to the trust.

While we are fully supportive and appreciative of the inclusion of ERP charges as qualifying, the current draft of Intro 26-A creates some significant and unnecessary new challenges for us. It also does not go far enough by failing to qualify other agency charges, such as those assessed by the Health or Buildings Department for unhealthy or unsafe conditions.

As I said earlier, most New Yorkers pay these charges. There should be no hesitation in protecting them by using all of our tools to collect from those who don't pay.

Many of the proposed changes would make our work either harder or require significant new resources. In other aspects, the bill raises serious legal questions. I will outline our issues on both administrative and policy grounds. In doing that, I underscore that we are completely open and anxious to work with Council Members and staff on addressing these issues to fashion a bill on which we can all be proud.

Let me turn to our administrative challenges and the income exemptions. Under the

2 current system, properties that have received 3 certain homeowner property tax exemptions for 4 senior citizens, disabled and those that qualify 5 for what is know as the State Circuit Breaker, are 6 ineligible for the lien sale. This bill extends 7 these exemptions by including all properties with 8 the veterans' exemption as well as some of those 9 seniors with the enhanced STaR exemption.

10 While we can debate the policy
11 merits of granting full exemptions from the lien 12 sale and from property tax obligations for whole 13 groups of homeowners, I hope the committee will 14 recognize as unworkable a requirement that we 15 split hairs with new income levels for removing 16 properties.

17 This bill would require that 18 homeowners who get an enhanced STaR exemption are 19 ineligible for the sale, but only if they earn les 20 than one and one half times the senior citizen 21 homeowner's exemption income limits. Enhanced
22 STaR has an income limit of $70,050 and SCHE's
23 limit is $37,400. This bill would force Finance 24 to create a third category where lien sale staff 25 would have to check private personal income

2 documentation and then create a process to verify
3 and audit that information.

4           While tying benefits to income has 5 obvious merits, the process can be immensely
6 complicated and costly to administer. At Finance, 7 we learned this the hard way when we took over 8 responsibility for the senior citizen rent 9 increase exemption program. We thought we could 10 turn SCRE into a fully automated process. We were 11 wrong.

12           For example, Finance cannot simply 13 data match to discover income. First, our income 14 tax information is tax secret and can only be used 15 for income tax enforcement purposes unless a 16 resident signs a waiver.

17           Second, when we went to the SCRE 18 population and asked for waivers to review their 19 tax information, we found that most did not file 20 income tax returns since their income was below 21 the threshold. We then had to collect different 22 kinds of income information from the entire group 23 and analyze it separately.

24           Third, reviewing income 25 information, whether through tax returns or other

2 submitted forms is always problematic since 3 definitions of income differ under different laws.
4 For example, income from SCHE is reduced by some 5 prescribed modifications while enhanced STaR uses 6 federal or state adjusted gross income for all 7 eligible residents in the home with no 8 modifications allowed. It is not clear which of 9 these two definitions, or perhaps a third would be 10 used with respect to Intro 26-A. In any event, it 11 is problematic.

12           Before taking on SCRE, we had 13 concluded we could administer the program with 14 little or no staff. However, we now have 12 full 15 time employees staffing the program. Many of you 16 are more than familiar with the problems this 17 caused before we cleaned up our act. None of us 18 would like to see that repeated here. The 19 provisions of this bill would create a program 20 that is more complicated and requires more 21 resources than SCRE.

22           Let me turn to payment plans. The 23 legislation requires that payment plans be created 24 on a means basis which presents the same problems 25 of obtaining, verifying and auditing income

2 information from applicants. That is, Finance 3 would have to create an income formula that would 4 allow those with lower incomes to make smaller 5 down payments to begin a payment plan and collect 6 and verify that income information.

7           As members of this committee who 8 have been past partners with us in lien sale 9 outreach events already know Finance has 10 traditionally been extremely flexible in providing 11 payment plans to individuals who come forward to 12 settle debts during the notice period. We offer a 13 quarterly payment schedule that is tied to the 14 payment schedule that we have established for the 15 majority of homeowners who remain current on their 16 debts. We also extend these payment plans out for 17 as far as eight years.

18           The new bill creates a monthly 19 payment system and ten year window for payments, 20 both of which add significant new administrative 21 hurdles. Our state of account, which is a 22 quarterly billing system, has proven fairly 23 effective. Our system would need to be 24 reprogrammed for little added benefit.

25           Additionally, it appears that under

2 this draft bill, a property is permanently 3 excluded from the lien sale once the owner has 4 entered into a payment agreement, even if the 5 owner later defaults on that agreement. I am sure 6 that the Council did not intend this result. Our 7 data shows that a high percent of properties that 8 enter into agreements in earlier lien sales are 9 now in default of those agreements. Of the $79 10 million currently outstanding in the approximately 11 4,000 open payment plans, some $50 million or 63 12 percent comes from properties that are in default 13 of their commitment. The law needs to create 14 incentives to keep up with the payment agreements, 15 not default on them.

16 Turning to new notices and mailing.
17 This bill requires that the Department of Finance 18 send quarterly mailings to all property owners 19 informing them about the lien sale. We estimate 20 that these provisions would require us to produce 21 an additional two million pieces of mail annually, 22 at a cost of at least $1.5 million. Given that 98
23 percent of property owners pay their taxes on time 24 this is not a sensible use of city resources.

25 Another challenge to the new

2 legislation is a requirement to add a 100 day and 3 120 day notice. Further lengthening the notice 4 period would do little to enhance property owners' 5 awareness and would do nothing in terms of getting 6 people to pay.

7 Under the lien sale reauthorization
8 law that the Council passed in 2007, the previous 9 60-day notice was extended to 90 days. However, 10 our data shows that little additional revenue was 11 collected because of the increased time. In fact, 12 85 percent of the debt is settled in the last 60 13 days prior to the lien sale, and almost a third 14 settled in the final ten days. The new notices 15 and extended timeframe would add significant cost 16 and delay without any substantial benefit.

17 Now I'll turn to the certified
18 mailing notice. As I mentioned, Finance already 19 does extensive noticing of those properties 20 eligible for the lien sale.

21 In fact, by the time the average 22 Class 1 property owner gets their first notice for 23 the lien sale, they must have already received at 24 least 12 statements in the mail. Once the lien 25 sale process starts, the city will contact

2 affected property owners at least three additional 3 times with targeted messages. We send delinquent 4 owners a notice of our intent to sell a lien if 5 they do not resolve their debt within 90 days.

6 We also publish this list of 7 properties in a local major daily newspaper, place 8 ads in the other daily papers and community papers 9 across the city and post the list on our website.
10 Thirty days later and sixty days before the sale, 11 we send a second notice to owners. Thirty days 12 after that, we send a third notice. Ten days 13 before the sale, we publish an updated list in the 14 newspapers and advertised again. Our website is 15 updated constantly throughout this process.

16 Only after all of these notices and 17 warnings do we sell a lien for all the properties 18 that have failed to address their debt. Over the 19 past three years, of the approximately 25,000 20 properties that were initially noticed, on average 21 less than 5,000 had a lien sold. And as John 22 noted, very few of these properties ever go into 23 foreclosure.

24 An additional unnecessary burden of 25 Intro 26-A is a new requirement that the lien sale

2 notice must also be sent by certified mail with 3 return receipt four months in advance of the sale 4 to anyone with an interest in the property.

5 First, the postage for this alone would range from 6 $250-$500,000. Second, the administrative burden 7 of mailing and matching tens of thousands of 8 return receipts is onerous.

9 Finally, and perhaps most 10 troublesome, is the possible interpretation under 11 the bill's language that if an owner does not sign 12 the certified return receipt, we would be unable 13 to include the property in the lien sale. I am 14 certain that the Council did not intend to create 15 a provision where evading certified mail sent to 16 your address became another means of evading your 17 financial obligations to the city.

18 I'll turn now to the defective lien
19 provisions. There are also many questions raised 20 by the language relating to liens being deemed 21 defective at the time of the lien sale, if the 22 owners would have been eligible for a specified 23 exemption even though they never applied for it.

24 Are applicants required to come in 25 and prove their past or current eligibility for an

2 exemption or both? Is the city required to 3 determine on its own whether a property owner 4 would have received an exemption had the owner
5 made a timely application? What is the lien on a 6 property that is eligible for one of the newly 7 state exemptions were sold and the servicer 8 collected the money from the taxpayer? If the 9 city now going to be required to reverse prior 10 sales of tax liens and refund the trust for the 11 defective liens for an indefinite number of back 12 years? Are the tests for eligibility those that 13 may have existed in the relevant tax year or the 14 current year?

15                   While the bill may not have 16 intended to create these series of complex 17 operational issues, they need to be addressed.

18                   In addition, these provisions, if 19 not amended, will mean that the lien pool is 20 potentially subject to change even after the liens
21 have been sold. When the city declares liens 22 defective after they are sold, the money to make 23 the trust whole comes from the city's own tax 24 levy. We leave it to OMB to calculate how much 25 more this might cost, but warn that it could also

2 drive down the trust payment to the city for the 3 lien pool since a retroactive defect process could 4 contradict the city's representations as to the 5 validity and enforceability of the liens.

6           The bill also requires Finance to 7 continue playing a role as an intermediary after 8 the lien sale date. Currently, we are out of the 9 process after the lien has been sold and we should 10 remain so. We have serious legal concerns about 11 the city maintaining a mandated role once a lien 12 has been sold.

13           Simply put, while our ombudsman
14 unit remains helpful when inquiries come to us 15 about properties where liens have already been 16 sold, the remedies we can offer are very limited.
17 We are not and do not want to be privy to payments 18 made or interactions with the servicer subsequent 19 to the sale of the lien. We believe that having 20 more than this arm's length relationship with the 21 servicer is inadvisable from a legal,
22 administrative and cost perspective.

23           I'll turn now to the statement of 24 account. This bill includes significant new 25 language that would require the statement of

2 account to be used as an enhanced collection tool.
3 There are many issues regarding the statement of 4 account that must be solved before we could 5 efficiently include lien notifications.

6 We acknowledge that the SOA could 7 be more effective in communicating information to 8 property owners and we have been working to recast 9 the SOA to make it more helpful and understanding.
10 Past changes made before my time have 11 significantly improved the SOA. However, the 12 property tax provisions are so complex that a more 13 simple and understandable summary remains a true 14 challenge.

15 There are more than one million
16 properties in the city. Last year, we stopped 17 mailing SOAs to property owners who did not owe 18 anything. In other words, it limited SOA mailings 19 only to those properties with outstanding charges.
20 This saves over $800,000 annually. Because 21 property owners with no balance no longer receive 22 a quarterly SOA, fewer than half of the city's 23 homes still receive it. This legislation would 24 require us to give up those savings and more.

25 In fact, going forward, we are

2 seeking to expand the use of electronic mailing 3 when owners opt for email over paper documents.
4 These beneficial changes, and others that we have 5 in the works, would be precluded by the new 6 statutory requirement that SOAs get mailed to 7 every property.

8 Another issue involves the 9 requirement that Finance add disputed charges to 10 the SOA. This provision, while appealing in 11 concept, is quite broad and alarming in scope.
12 First, we interpret the bill's provisions on 13 disputed charges to mean that Finance cannot 14 include disputed charges in determining whether a 15 property has met the dollar threshold to be 16 included in the sale. As you know, many property 17 owners challenge their assessments each year 18 before the Tax Commission or in court. We 19 encourage them to make use of their administrative 20 remedies when they truly believe we have made an 21 error in assessment.

22 This language would preclude us
23 from including as an eligible charge unpaid
24 property tax that is the subject of a Tax 25 Commission or court protest. This undermines a

2 basic underpinning of tax law. That while taxes 3 may be in dispute, they are still fully payable.
4 It is a longstanding public policy upheld by the 5 courts that delinquent taxpayers must first pay 6 their taxes and then challenge them. Courts have 7 upheld that a dispute about a tax bill does not 8 stop enforcement proceedings. We must remain 9 mindful of that basic obligation of all the city's 10 property owners.

11           Given the administrative procedures
12 in place for property owners to challenge
13 Finance's assessments, DEP's water bills or other 14 property-related charges, there is no need for 15 Intro 26-A's requirement that Finance create yet 16 another procedure. In fact, an additional tier of 17 review would only cause confusion.

18           The provisions concerning other 19 agency charges are problematic for other reasons.
20 It creates an incentive for homeowners to 21 frivolously dispute a charge to get out of the 22 lien sale. In addition to the policy challenges, 23 there are significant practical issues in 24 implementing these provisions.

25           To date, 25 different charges

2 appear on the statement of account and each agency
3 has a different method of resolving disputes.

4 Tracking changes would require a complete change 5 to the city's billing model which now simply 6 depends on agencies to pass along their charges by 7 address. Given that each agency has its own due 8 process procedures on disputing charges it would 9 be a monumental challenge to track them all.

10 Now, I'll turn to the costs. This 11 bill creates significant new costs for the city 12 that we estimate at approximately $400,000 on a 13 one-time basis and $3.5 million recurring 14 annually. The most significant one-time cost is 15 the reprogramming of our IT infrastructure.

16 We know the resources involved in 17 the 2007-2008 reprogramming after the law was last 18 authorized, and this and other mandates additions 19 within this bill lead us to an estimate that we 20 may need four to six months for five full time IT 21 programming staff to get our systems ready for the 22 changes envisioned by this bill. Six months for 23 five IT staff comes at a cost of over $400,000.

24 Finally, there is an addition to 25 the bill which we believe would be extremely

2 beneficial. Our estimates are that Intro 26-A 3 leaves $56 million on the table this year, along 4 with a recurring $21 million. Most of this is 5 water debt, which Commissioner Holloway will 6 discuss in detail. However, more than $17 million 7 immediately and $3 million in annually recurring 8 collections will be forgone if the bill is not 9 amended to qualify for the lien sale other 10 standalone agency charges. Including such charges 11 is not merely for revenue purposes.

12 For example, property owners need 13 to know that when the Health Department is forced 14 to cleanup your vacant lot or exterminate in your 15 building to correct unsafe conditions, you will be 16 held accountable. We have specific properties in 17 many of your districts where such debts to the 18 city are going unpaid because we do not now have 19 this power.

20 This bill already adds similar 21 language with respect to ERP and we respectfully 22 ask that you include the other standalone agency 23 charges when considering changes to the bill.

24 Everyone recognizes this is a 25 difficult issue. I want to assure you that the

2 Finance Department will continue to work with 3 individuals who may be in financial distress to 4 find ways for them to meet their obligations.
5 However, our primary focus must be on the vast 6 majority of New Yorkers who pay their taxes, their 7 charges and their fines. It is unfair to penalize 8 them by either increasing their share of the cost 9 of government or reducing their services.

10 Thank you for the opportunity to 11 share our thoughts. I look forward to your 12 questions.

13 CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: Thank you,
14 Commissioner. Before we let DEP testify, I just 15 want to recognize we've been joined by Council 16 Member Leroy Comrie. DEP, and after this we'll 17 take questions.

18 CASWELL F. HOLLOWAY: Good morning, 19 Chairs Van and Recchia, and members of the 20 committees. I'm Cas Holloway, Commissioner to the 21 New York City Department of Environmental 22 Protection. I appreciate the opportunity to 23 testify on Intro 26-A.

24 I want to start by expressing my 25 gratitude to Chairman Vann and Chairman Recchia

2 and their staffs, the "Lien Team" as Chairman 3 Recchia referred to it, who have taken the time to 4 meet with me over the past year to discuss water 5 rates, revenue collection and the importance of 6 lien sale reauthorization.

7 I've heard from you and every 8 community that I've presented to throughout the 9 five boroughs that recent water rate increases 10 have been too steep and that that trend cannot 11 continue. I agree. Reauthorizing, and as I will 12 explain shortly, expanding lien sale authority is 13 absolutely essential to keeping water rates as low 14 as possible.

15 I also understand, as do my 16 colleagues here at the table, that the authority 17 to initiate a lien sale is a powerful tool and has 18 to be administered carefully and with adequate 19 protections for the most vulnerable New Yorkers 20 who truly may not be able to keep up with their 21 bills, particularly in these tough financial 22 times.

23 In fact, recognizing this last
24 year, Mayor Bloomberg introduced the water debt
25 assistance program, which Chairman Vann, you stood

2 with us to announce last year, which provided 3 relief for homeowners facing foreclosure by 4 temporarily relieving them of their outstanding
5 water and sewer debt. This successful program 6 alone excluded 533 homeowners from the lien sale
7 process.

8 In addition to the water debt
9 assistance program, DEP also exempts seniors, 10 disabled and low income homeowners who meet the 11 criteria for the disabled homeowners' exemption 12 and the senior citizens homeowners' exemption and 13 the New York State personal income tax credit 14 circuit breaker. And properties with significant 15 mortgage arrears, in other words, with lis pendens 16 listings, are also excluded.

17 Taken together, these exemptions
18 excluded more than 3,200 homeowners from the lien 19 sale process, even though they would have 20 qualified based on the amount and duration of 21 their unpaid water bills. That is a significant 22 number of our most vulnerable customers.

23 Some members of the public and the 24 Council may have the impression that the authority 25 to conduct a lien sale means that the city will

2 take away someone's home. As Chairman Recchia 3 noted at the beginning of this hearing, that is 4 not the case. The vast majority of properties, 5 and that is a very large majority, that start on 6 the lien sale list pay their bill or enter a 7 payment with DEP or the Department of Finance, 8 which means that their liens are never sold.

9           For example, in 2010, 18,359
10 properties were lien sale eligible at the start of 11 the process, and after three months of outreach, 12 87 percent of these properties were removed from 13 the lien sale because the owners either paid the 14 bill in full, entered a payment agreement or their 15 property was removed based on one of the 16 exemptions I just listed. Only 13 percent of 17 liens that started the process were sold, and in 18 terms of foreclosure, since 1997 only 396 occupied 19 tax Class 1 properties have been foreclosed. The 20 figures that John Grathwol presented are also very 21 compelling in terms of the number of these 22 properties that end up in foreclosure.

23           These numbers show that the lien 24 sale authority is not a meaningful step towards 25 foreclosure. Rather, it is a necessary tool to

2 collect unpaid water bills from New Yorkers who 3 can afford to pay, but don't do so unless 4 compelled. For reasons that may have a lot to do 5 with the history of how the city used to bill for 6 water and sewer service, and I'm going to focus on 7 water because that's my business, a small but 8 persistent group of people do not pay their water 9 bills until they are threatened with the prospect 10 of a lien sale.

11                   Since 2008, DEP has recovered $285
12 million in delinquent water and sewer payments
13 through the lien sale process. Without lien sale 14 authority, this revenue would have gone
15 uncollected, which would have necessitated higher 16 water rates for everyone else. In fact, we 17 estimate that without lien sale authority, water 18 rates as high as they were, would have been 19 increased by an additional 2.2 percent, or $51 a 20 year, for everyone who pays their bill. That's a 21 tremendous burden for good bill paying customers 22 to bear on behalf of those who can afford to pay 23 but refuse to do so.

24                   Turning to the specifics of Intro 25 26-A, the fact that the Council is considering

2 this legislation means that we agree on a
3 fundamental point. Those who can afford to pay 4 their water bill should pay, and lien sale
5 authority is necessary to achieve that result.
6 There are elements of the bill which DEP is 7 certainly in favor of. Chairman Recchia, the 8 requirement to publish disputes on DEP's website, 9 we think that's a great idea. We look forward to 10 doing it. We can do it whether it's in 11 legislation or not. But there are elements of the 12 draft bill that undercut that goal and will drive 13 up water rates for the majority of New Yorkers who 14 pay their bills.

15 My colleagues at OMB, Finance and 16 HPD have already expressed their concerns
17 regarding down payments, notifications, mailing 18 requirements and others, so I won't repeat that 19 here. A significant concern for DEP is that the 20 current bill raises the eligibility thresholds for 21 selling liens on two and three-family homes in tax 22 Class 1 from a delinquency of one year and $1,000 23 to a delinquency of two years and $2,000.

24 This change would have dramatic 25 consequences, not just for the vast majority of

2 responsible New Yorkers who pay their bills and 3 who would be stuck with higher water rates because 4 of decreased revenues. It would also harm the 5 distressed homeowners that we all agree need help.

6           If the two year eligibility
7 threshold were in effect this year, for example, 8 it would reduce the number of lien sale eligible 9 accounts in tax Class 1 from 16,800 to 2,000, and 10 the amount of underlying lien sale eligible debt 11 would drop from $94 million to just $27 million.

12           The reduction in collections that 13 we project from this change in eligibility 14 criteria translates to an additional rate increase 15 of more than one percent for everyone else who 16 pays their bills. And it would go a long way to 17 restoring the status quo prior to Local Law 68, 18 when a small but persistent segment of New Yorkers 19 regarded water and sewer charges as something that 20 they simply did not have to pay.

21           In addition, if the intent of this 22 provision is to relieve the pressure that unpaid 23 water and sewer bills can create for a homeowner 24 facing financial difficulties, I respectfully 25 suggest that it will have the opposite effect.

2 That's because delinquent homeowners will simply 3 accumulate more water debt during the second year 4 that they would not be eligible for the lien sale
5 rather than coming to DEP or Finance after a year 6 to pay their bill or enter into a manageable 7 payment plan to do so.

8 I can give you an illustration of 9 this. Under the proposed legislation, we estimate 10 that the average water and sewer debt of a tax 11 Class 1 property eligible for the lien sale would 12 jump dramatically from about $5,600 today to 13 nearly $8,400 if the threshold is extended to two 14 years and $2,000.

15 At that point, the size of the debt 16 and the interest would be overwhelming and 17 extremely threatening to a property owner's 18 economic wellbeing. We want property owners to 19 approach us as soon as possible to discuss their 20 bill, make a down payment and enter a payment 21 agreement long before their debt approaches $8,400 22 and true financial distress becomes all but 23 inevitable.

24 Council Members, in the back and 25 forth that we've had in preparation for this

2 testimony and the preparation of this bill, you've 3 asked some detailed questions about payment plans.
4 I think the answers show a high degree of 5 flexibility that DEP and I'm certain the 6 Department of Finance who in handling individual 7 homeowners in terms of the size of the down 8 payment, making adjustments there, extending the 9 amount of time in terms of defaults. All that 10 information has been submitted and we certainly 11 can submit it again. But there is a lot of 12 flexibility because we understand everyone's 13 personal circumstances are different.

14           A second serious concern with the 15 bill is the exclusion of single-family homes from 16 lien sale eligibility. Approximately 9,000
17 single-family homes would qualify for the lien 18 sale based on the criteria that was in place until 19 this year. Right now, DEP's only recourse to get 20 these funds is to threaten water shutoffs. Now, 21 shutting off water is a costly measure and a 22 potential public health risk. And frankly, I want 23 to get DEP out of the business of shutting 24 people's water off.

25           Last year, we noticed some 18,000

2 homes that may be eligible for water shutoff, but 3 due to resource constraints, we could only target 4 roughly 3,500 of those homes for enforcement, 5 meaning that we collected very little from 14,500
6 homes. To actually terminate service requires a 7 crew to excavate the street, turn off the water 8 and restore the street to a safe condition at an 9 average cost of $2,700 per shutoff.

10 In Fiscal Year 2010, we served 15-11 day notices on 3,500 single-family homes and 12 terminated service on only 57 of them. Now, we 13 collected $2.78 million from this group, but we 14 spent $2 million to collect it. That means that 15 the water system only got to keep 28 cents on the 16 dollar.

17 Terminating service tied up the 18 equivalent of ten full time field staff that 19 otherwise could have performed work in all of your 20 districts. That I've talked I think to everyone 21 on this committee about at one time or another, 22 cleaning catch basins, cleaning sewers, repairing
23 other parts of the system. This is simply not a 24 part of the business that operations should be in.
25 It makes no sense, and particularly in this time of limited resources.

Including single-family homes in the lien sale process is a much fairer and certainly a more economical way to collect unpaid water bills from New Yorkers who can afford to pay. Currently, single-family homeowners who owe $1,000 or more, in other words meet the criteria that is currently in place, total 9,000 rate payers who have accrued over $51 million in water and sewer debt.

Based on past payment patterns, and that's the numbers that I went through, 87 percent of those eligible for lien sale resolve their charges way before the lien sale ever happens. We estimate that we would collect an additional $28.5 million in FY 2011 alone, which is equivalent to about a point on the water rate.

If lien sale authority is not extended to single-family homes, this lost revenue will have to be made up by raising the water rate for everyone else. That's truly a perverse incentive.

Since becoming DEP commissioner in January of last year, I have attended more than a

2 dozen meetings in all five boroughs to explain 3 what DEP is doing. How we're using tremendous 4 resources that we've been entrusted with to carry 5 out DEP's vital mission. We held a dozen meetings 6 throughout 2010 in addition to the meetings I went 7 to, solely making billing representatives and 8 customer service personnel available at the 9 neighborhood level. Chairman Recchia, Chairman
10 Vann, other members of this committee, I think 11 I've seen you at a number of those events, Council 12 Member Koppell. We're going to keep doing that.
13 This year, we're going to go out and make rounds 14 again.

15                   At these meetings, I present to the 16 public and I take questions and people routinely 17 ask me to do three things as Commissioner. The 18 first thing is to continue to provide critical 19 water and sewer services that New Yorkers have 20 rightly come to expect from DEP at the lowest 21 possible cost.

22                   Second is to do everything in our 23 power to make certain that those who can afford to 24 pay their water bill do so, and are not allowed to 25 pass on their water debt to the vast majority of

New Yorkers who pay their bills.

Third is to help those who truly cannot afford to pay their bill now and need assistance.

Reauthorizing and expanding DEP's lien sale authority will accomplish all three of these goals. We know the lien sale process incentivizes people to pay their water bill. Since 2008, the three lien sales have brought in $285 million, ensuring that we can meet our capital commitments and operating needs in serving the nine million people who rely on NYC Water. By expanding lien sale authority to include single-family homes, DEP will have a proven enforcement tool to make sure all homeowners who can afford to pay do so.

Finally, DEP has done much in the last year and will do more in the future to protect those New Yorkers who are the most vulnerable. The simplest and strongest argument for reauthorizing the lien sale and including single-family homes in it is that it will mean a lower rate increase for everyone else, without endangering the most vulnerable, who we can

2 protect through targeted exemptions and the Water
3 Debt Assistance program.

4           Of course, lien sale authority is 5 only part of the answer to keeping water rates as 6 low as possible, and I understand this. Last 7 year, DEP cut its expense budget by 8 percent for 8 FY 2011 and I'm working on a similar reduction for 9 the next fiscal year. But every dollar we can't 10 collect, and I think people know here we have $11 11 billion in construction, $3 billion in design, a 12 lot of it mandated projects, so we don't exactly 13 have as much control as I would like over what 14 we're building and when, but we know we have to 15 pay for it.

16           Every dollar that we can't collect 17 because those who can afford to pay won't, is 18 another dollar that we have to make up from a good 19 bill paying customer who does pay their bills.
20 Every tool we have to avert that outcome and 21 ensure a fair distribution of the cost for our 22 water system is critical. Keeping the current 23 lien sale authority intact and expanding it as 24 I've suggested will maintain one of the most 25 important tools available to us.

2 Chairman Vann and Recchia, I thank 3 you for the opportunity to testify and I'll 4 happily take any questions that you have.

5 CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: Thank you. I 6 want to thank all the commissioners for 7 testifying. We will start with questions. I have 8 to say, Commissioner Cas Holloway, my colleague 9 Jimmy Oddo is cringing right now because when you 10 went through your statement about when you have 11 those town halls you have, the most asked 12 question, I believe the most asked question is why 13 can't you lower our rate. That's very important.
14 That's a great concern to this committee, but 15 we'll go into that. I'm sure my colleagues will 16 have questions about that.

17 First, I want to start off with 18 John from OMB, I have a question. You stated that 19 the authority to sell the liens on all municipal 20 charges is necessary to encourage payment. Do you 21 have a full list of all of the municipal charges 22 that this would encompass?

23 JOHN GRATHWOL: Yes, I do.

24 CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: I ask this 25 because in order to know this you would have to go

2 through every section of the Administrative Code
3 to capture all of the lienable charges. We asked 4 the Administration for a copy of this, but they 5 did not give it to us. So you have this list?

JOHN GRATHWOL: Let me amend my 7 statement. I have a list of all the municipal 8 charges for which there are balances owed on the 9 Department of Finance's system. So I don't have a 10 list of--

CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: [interposing]
12 But that's not all the debt. When we looked that, 13 it wasn't all the debt or all the charges.

14

JOHN GRATHWOL: I have a list of 15 all the charges, but there are municipal charges 16 in the law books for which there are currently no
17 charges on the system. I don't have an inclusive 18 list that covers all of those additional charges.

CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: We were 20 asking for an inclusive list of all the charges so 21 we could examine this as one total package. So we 22 would like this information.

23

JOHN GRATHWOL: Correct.

24

CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: So if you
25 could get that to us, we would really appreciate it.

JOHN GRATHWOL: Okay.

CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: My next question is to Cas Holloway, and then I'll turn it over to Al Vann, who has a number of questions.

I'm concerned about the most vulnerable in our communities, you know, the seniors and others, who they struggle day in and day out to make ends meet, to pay their water and sewer services and their other utilities. They have hardships and they have difficulties. Is there something that you could look into? What are you doing to help people that are struggling? Have you come up with ways and different ideas how you could help people who are struggling to pay their water bills?

Also, this would include one-family homes. I know you would like that to be included. Could you just go into that a little bit?

CASWELL F. HOLLOWAY: Sure. First, one of the programs that we put in place last year was the Water Debt Assistance Program which actually suspended debt for water debt. Really there's a certain amount that was suspended

2 permanently for people who, until the sale of the 3 property, until they were able to get back on 4 their feet or until the property was ultimately 5 sold, as long as they entered into a plan to stay 6 current on their bills. Then we have the 7 exemptions that already exist.

8           But one thing that we've looked 9 into, and I would be happy to provide some 10 additional detail on this is, one that DEP doesn't 11 yet do, which other utilities do and we think 12 could make some sense in this context, is offer a 13 hardship grant program. The questions with a 14 program like that are how do you administer it, 15 who do you offer it to?

16           We've looked at a lot of potential 17 models for this over the last year. The Home 18 Energy Assistance Program, which is a federally 19 administered program, provides income qualified 20 households grants to help defray their energy 21 charges.

22           We've talked to HRA about this 23 program and we've modeled it against our customer 24 base and we think that for a fairly modest cost, 25 we would be able to offer a significant grant to

2 income-qualified individuals. That for this 3 program is set at 150 percent of the federal 4 poverty guidelines to a certain maximum. I can 5 provide you details on the way we've modeled this.

6 CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: Just give us
7 an example, like for a family of four.

8 CASWELL F. HOLLOWAY: For a family 9 of four, based on what we've modeled, we think if 10 they were income-qualified, the grant would be as 11 much as $250. Now, the average single-family home 12 cost of a water bill this year is $823. So that's 13 more than 25 percent of their bill.

14 CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: You would 15 deduct it?

16 CASWELL F. HOLLOWAY: That would be 17 a credit on their account. They wouldn't even 18 have to sign up, because we can administer that 19 with HRA. The great thing about this program is, 20 you know, some people say well how does that match 21 up with the population of people who are on the 22 lien sale list versus the population of people who 23 would qualify for the grant?

24 There is some overlap there. But 25 the fundamental point, I think, of the testimony

2 of all four of us is the facts demonstrate that 3 the majority of people on the lien sale list can 4 pay. Eighty-seven percent of them pay. They 5 won't meet the income qualification.

6 But if you go to populations that 7 are willing to go and become income qualified, we 8 think that close to 20,000 people could benefit 9 from a grant program like this. That it would be 10 a substantial credit on their bill that they don't 11 even have to sign up for. About 60 percent of the 12 population that ultimately gets these grants is 60 13 years or older.

14 We think that if you net out the 15 cost of this program against the revenues that we 16 believe we would be able to bring in by adding 17 single-family homes to the lien sale process, the 18 net, I had said in my testimony, we thought it 19 would be about $28-$29 million. We think this 20 program would cost about $4.5 million, based on 21 certain qualifications. So you'd end up netting 22 about $23 million, which is still close to about a 23 point on the rate that would otherwise have to be 24 collected.

25 But it would offer significant

2 relief to the population that we know, based on an 3 objective test, objective qualifications, not 4 because their on a lien sale list, because we 5 actually don't think that's a good indication that 6 people are facing true hardship. We think that 7 most of those people, once they get a lien sale 8 notice, actually pay. I can provide you a lot of 9 detail on this, and we are willing to entertain 10 that idea.

11 CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: Would that be 12 in addition to shutting off water, or you would 13 stop shutting off water?

14 CASWELL F. HOLLOWAY: We would stop 15 shutting off water.

16 CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: So nobody 17 would have to worry about getting their water shut 18 off?

19 CASWELL F. HOLLOWAY: The only 20 circumstances in which water would be shut off, if 21 we were able to include single families in the 22 lien is if infrastructure is actually endangered.
23 What happens, in fact the majority of the leaks 24 that DEP responds to involve private 25 infrastructure, the service line that goes from

2 the pipe to the house. If that breaks and it
3 actually is ripping up the street, then we'd turn 4 off the water. But then somebody comes and fixes 5 that right away.

6 That would simply be an 7 infrastructure-related shutoff. Otherwise, we 8 would take operations and get them out of the 9 water shutting off business, out of the revenue 10 collection business.

11 By the way, just for order of 12 magnitude, I said that we spent about $2 million 13 to collect $2.78 million last year through the 14 shutoff process. We estimate that the additional 15 administrative cost to bring single families into 16 the lien sale and administer this hardship grant 17 program would be about $360,000. So, I mean, it 18 is truly a cost effective way to help people who 19 you will have confidence are the people that you 20 want to help.

21 CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: If you could 22 get that information to the "Lien Team," headed by 23 Tanisha Edwards, I'd appreciate that.

24 CASWELL F. HOLLOWAY: Absolutely.

25 CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: At this time,

2 I'll turn it over to my colleague Council Member 3 Al Vann.

4 CHAIRPERSON VANN: Thank you,
5 Chairman. Good afternoon, again, gentlemen. I
6 appreciate your presence and your testimony. I 7 think the Mayor should be very proud of you guys.
8 You are all working together collaboratively.
9 You've got your testimony together.

10 You make a very strong pervasive
11 argument in terms of making sure that our city 12 gets all the revenue that they deserve. I think 13 we all support that. We realize that we need 14 money. By your testimony, it seems around, what, 15 87 percent when you get through with all of our 16 process, you actually get in to pay their debt.

17 CASWELL F. HOLLOWAY: And that's 18 before the sale.

19 CHAIRPERSON VANN: Before the sale.
20 That's right, and that's to be commended. So by 21 your numbers, there's another 13 percent that we 22 seem to be really concerned about. As much as I 23 applaud the efforts of those agencies and all that 24 you do to get that money in, I have to be 25 concerned about that 13 percent.

2           Because in that 13 percent, you 3 find a lot of senior citizens who have paid their 4 dues to this country and we owe them something.
5 In that 13 percent, you find veterans, those who 6 have gone to foreign lands to fight for us, to 7 fight for freedom. In that 13 percent, you find 8 people who are suffering from the recession, high 9 unemployment in many areas of our city, people who 10 are down on their luck, people who did a lot to 11 try and buy the American dream and own a home and 12 could lose it because of circumstances, many 13 beyond their control.

14           So as much as I admire your zest 15 and intellect and all that you do to make sure we 16 get our revenue and thank you, I would like that 17 same zest and the same energy and the same focus 18 to make sure that poor people and seniors and 19 disabled and veterans do not lose their home, 20 which is a very strong possibility if we don't act 21 some of the reforms that are forthcoming.

22           You know, there's a mean
23 spiritedness spreading the country now, coming 24 from the extreme right. In the name of reform, we 25 are willing to do nothing for people who are poor.

2 We are ready to bust unions. It's a mindset that 3 blows my mind in terms of the insensitivity--not 4 with you--of those who would profess the laws that 5 they are trying to pass their various state 6 legislatures and even in the Congress, that would 7 just pretend that poverty does not exist, that 8 poor people do not exist, that working people 9 should not have rights. I'm fearful. That is not 10 your mindset. Let me be clear.

11 But inadvertently perhaps, because 12 of that which you do well and you should do well, 13 we are overlooking a sensitivity, a heartness, 14 that need to be also there in terms of those who 15 cannot afford to pay at this time. I think we 16 have to make a distinction between those who don't 17 pay and those who cannot afford to pay. I think 18 this is where we lose our sense of balance as far 19 as between you and me.

20 There are a large number of people 21 who cannot afford to pay at this time. That is 22 where I think government has to bend over 23 backwards and do whatever we can, give them every 24 opportunity so they do not lose their home.
25 Because if they lose their home, it will be an

2 additional charge on the society, going into the 3 homeless shelter and all the other benefits we 4 have to try and bring to people who fall into that 5 position.

6           Having said that, I have just a few 7 questions and then the other members can ask their 8 questions. OMB, if a property owner is having 9 difficulty with a servicer, is there any recourse 10 on who they can reach out to for help?

11           JOHN GRATHWOL: They can seek 12 additional help from anybody who they wish.

13           CHAIRPERSON VANN: You mean they 14 can hire a lawyer?

15           JOHN GRATHWOL: They can hire a 16 lawyer. They can work with the servicers to enter 17 into a payment plan.

18           CHAIRPERSON VANN: In other words, 19 the servicer has the complete authority to control 20 that relationship for the most part.

21           JOHN GRATHWOL: Yes.

22           CHAIRPERSON VANN: How does the 23 servicer get his or her job, contract?

24           JOHN GRATHWOL: Every several 25 years, the City, OMB, opens up a request for

2 proposals process and selects among a group of 3 servicers who they think is the best qualified to 4 accomplish the duties of the servicer.

5 CHAIRPERSON VANN: What is the 6 policy rationale for raising interest rates of 7 properties to 18 percent after the liens are sold?

8 JOHN GRATHWOL: According to the 9 Local Law passed by the Council, those rates were 10 originally set with the idea that we are dealing 11 with a group of delinquent property owners who are 12 moving into a collection process. These are not 13 property owners who face the interest rates set by 14 Local Law for the property tax or water bill 15 collection prior to sale into the lien process.

16 CHAIRPERSON VANN: So why is it 18
17 percent again? I missed that answer.

18 JOHN GRATHWOL: Well, it's not even 19 a penalty interest rate. There are many property 20 taxes that are at 18 percent. It's a rate set in 21 Local Law by the Council, signed by the Mayor, for 22 interest rate on lien sale collections.

23 CHAIRPERSON VANN: So you're saying
24 if we want that rate reduced, then the City
25 Council should do it?

2 JOHN GRATHWOL: No, that's not what
3 I'm saying. Currently, the servicers administer 4 an interest rate that is given to them in Local 5 Law and they follow that Local Law, as you would 6 expect them to do.

7 CHAIRPERSON VANN: If we want a
8 different interest rate, we should give them a 9 different interest rate.

10 JOHN GRATHWOL: If the city
11 collectively, the Administration and the City 12 Council decide to change the interest rates, the 13 servicers would be more than happy to employ 14 whatever interest rate we tell them.

15 CHAIRPERSON VANN: Why did you
16 recommend 18 percent?

17 JOHN GRATHWOL: I believe that was 18 set in 1996 when I wasn't working here. So 19 personally I didn't recommend it. But I think 20 that the idea is currently property tax rates for 21 homes with less than $200,000 in assessed value, 22 the interest rate is 9 percent. For all other 23 properties in the city, it's 18 percent. So the 24 18 percent interest rate that is being levied on 25 taxpayers who haven't paid their tax bills and go

2 into the lien sale is 18 percent, which is just 3 like it is for every other property in the city in 4 the normal collection process prior to the lien
5 sale.

6 CHAIRPERSON VANN: You got that?
7 I'm not sure that that's valid. I think that to 8 charge an additional fee for those who are having 9 difficultly paying and did not work out a payment 10 plan, is like saying we know you've had 11 difficultly up until this point, and we're going 12 to make sure that you don't have the opportunity 13 to be getting your lien back. That's what it 14 says, realistically, to a person that's struggling 15 to maintain their home. I'm not sure that the 16 answer you gave is actually correct. I'm trying 17 to understand you because it doubles the interest 18 rate from 9 percent to 18 percent. The rationale 19 is that's what was in the Local Law, as I 20 understand it.

21 JOHN GRATHWOL: Well, for homes
22 under $250,000 in assessed value, the property tax 23 interest rate is 9 percent. For all other 24 properties in the city, the property tax rate is 25 18 percent. So if you're talking about a single-

2 family home that's delinquent before being sold to 3 the lien sale, the interest rate is 9 percent.
4 When it goes in to the lien sale, it jumps up to 5 18 percent. But for all the other properties, 6 that doesn't happen.

7 CHAIRPERSON VANN: Right. Thank 8 you for that information. One of the recurring 9 arguments I heard from most of you, dealing with 10 how complex it would be to administer a lot of the 11 provisions that are called for in the bill.
12 You're suggesting that it's so complex that you 13 may have difficulty complying with the law if it 14 were to become a law. Are you saying that there 15 is nothing that you're dealing with now that 16 requires that degree of complexity? Even carrying 17 out the state property tax law, when you 18 administer that, is that less complex than what is 19 being asked for in this bill?

20 JOHN GRATHWOL: I think you hit on 21 the one subject that's much more complex than this 22 bill.

23 CHAIRPERSON VANN: Oh.

24 JOHN GRATHWOL: I was thinking of 25 mentioning that, but I didn't want to, you know,

2 divert. But that is one thing that is much more 3 complex. But the issue here is that we're dealing 4 with this complicated pool of collateral that 5 we're going to rating agencies and with an 6 investment bank, asking to structure into a bond 7 offering and approve a rating. Then we're trying 8 to sell it to investors. So it's really selling 9 it to the rating agencies and selling it to the 10 investors.

11 Our current rules are already quite 12 complex. Prior to 2008, we used to offer a 13 complex set of bond offerings that we now do not 14 because the tolerance for the credit markets for 15 complicated asset backed bonds has gone down a lot 16 since 2008.

17 So it is just true that to the 18 degree we can remove complexity, we will have a 19 better time communicating to rating agencies, 20 getting a rating and selling the bonds.

21 CHAIRPERSON VANN: I appreciate
22 that. You would prefer a more simplified 23 structure. But you've demonstrated you can handle 24 complex matters. You've handled yourself quite 25 well and I know that you're capable of handling

2 complexity, as you've indicated dealing with state 3 property tax.

4 I have one last question for OMB.
5 What happens if the city discovers a lien was 6 mistakenly sold? Can it be brought back or who 7 pays for the mistake?

8 JOHN GRATHWOL: Currently, there 9 are a small number of mistakenly sold liens, which 10 we call defective liens, which are cured and the 11 city pays the trust and brings the lien back. I 12 guess the issue that I raised with regard to that 13 is that when we make a true sale representation in 14 selling liens to the trust, we are saying that to 15 the best of our ability we've done everything we 16 can to identify the valid liens.

17 I think the problem raised by the 18 retroactive application of eligibility criteria, 19 once we've found out someone is--at the time of 20 our true sale, we will know that there are some 21 lines in there that are invalid. You know, and it 22 does undermine our ability to say at the sale date 23 that we have done everything in our ability to 24 deal with this issue. So, in a sense, we'll have 25 to say we know we're selling some of these liens,

2 we think they might be defective for this specific 3 reason. Rather than, we have done everything we 4 can and short of some mistake, all of these liens
5 are valid. So that's the difference.

6 CHAIRPERSON VANN: I do understand
7 your problem and the difficulty. My difficulty 8 is what is the value to the city of a person
9 mistakenly losing their home? How do you balance 10 that? I understand what it is you're trying to 11 do, but understand what ought to be your concern 12 as well.

13 So that if you have to err on one 14 side or the other, the tendency is to err on the 15 side that we must get this revenue and we've got 16 to make sure the bond holders are good about 17 buying these bonds, even if the impact is 18 traumatic and immeasurable on human beings. I 19 think this is where we have to try and strike a 20 balance and do everything we can to safeguard 21 that.

22 I do understand your problem, but 23 also understand the problem that people face if 24 our system is so exact and does not have the 25 flexibility to provide for the needs of these

2 people, even if it raises a question with some of 3 our bond holders.

4 CASWELL F. HOLLOWAY: You know,
5 Council Member, I just want to jump in. The 6 Administration, DEP, Finance, HPD and certainly 7 OMB, but we're more on the transaction end of 8 this, are extremely careful and thorough in the 9 identification of the properties that we think are 10 eligible. Before it even gets to the point where-11 -what John's talking about is the point at which 12 you have a pool of liens and you're going out to 13 the market and saying here's my pool of assets.
14 Way before that, long before that, we are looking 15 and scrutinizing this group.

16 I can tell you, certainly for DEP's 17 part, and I'm sure Finance, we're very 18 conservative. If we think there's a problem, if 19 we think we're wrong, if we think something is 20 defective in what we've put together, we don't 21 include it. So we take very seriously what's at 22 stake here. So I just want to make that point.

23 CHAIRPERSON VANN: I think all of 24 you do. I did not assume that any of you really 25 were taking all of this for granted and not

2 mindful of the impact. I think it's the policy
3 within you're working with and the regulations 4 that are there which I'm concerned about, which is 5 why we have reform. I think individually you all 6 want to do the right thing, I'm certain. I'm glad 7 to see all of you working together and coming to 8 each other's aid. That makes me feel even better.

9           Secondly, Department of Finance, 10 currently do you have a mechanism in place to 11 remove someone from the lien sale if they are 12 eligible for a program that would exempt them from 13 that lien sale, but may not be enrolled?

14           DAVID M. FRANKEL: No.

15           CHAIRPERSON VANN: You do not.
16 Would you have a problem if we put one in place?

17           DAVID M. FRANKEL: Yes.

18           CHAIRPERSON VANN: Why?

19           DAVID M. FRANKEL: Becoming 20 enrolled in a program envisions a voluntary act on 21 somebody's part. It would be very hard for us, 22 next to impossible for us to go through the 23 potential list of anybody who might be eligible 24 and try to figure out income limitations and 25 everything else.

2                   At some point, getting into a
3 program or doing something else requires a person 4 to take certain steps. Once they take those 5 steps, we will do everything we can to help them.
6 But the idea of going through 25,000 potential 7 properties and seeing who might have been eligible 8 for benefits becomes very hard.

9                   We do this in one particular case, 10 which has to do with the earned income tax credit 11 where we just recently mailed out thousands of 12 pre-filled out income tax returns to people who we 13 felt would be eligible for the credit but never 14 applied for it. But that's the one limited case 15 where we, with all of our data, have found it 16 practicable to actually do that. I think what 17 you're suggesting would be extremely difficult.

18                   CHAIRPERSON VANN: That's 19 interesting. I understand that. I had the 20 impression that you were already doing some of 21 this. That out of the spirit of cooperation and 22 the concern that you have for our citizens that 23 you were already involved in a procedure to do 24 just that. You were identifying people who had 25 not really applied for the exemption but they were

10 11 12
13
14
15
16
17
18 19 20
21
22
23
24

qualified.

There are a lot of reasons why that does not occur. Some of our senior citizens suffer from degrees of dementia. There are all kinds of circumstances. These aren't people trying to avoid paying their taxes. These are people who have difficulty and problems and we're trying to help them out.

DAVID M. FRANKEL: I agree.

CHAIRPERSON VANN: You already have a cooperative program going forward. Maybe it's not a perfect one and maybe it needs some support from the Council, which I'm trying to do. But I did not get the impression from you guys that this was something that was maybe complex but not impossible.

DAVID M. FRANKEL: What I'm saying is that our community outreach people will meet with people and will go over their personal situations with them and will recommend that they may be eligible for something. My understanding of what you're talking about is taking a list of 25,000 potential eligible properties and saying we now need to go and investigate each one of these

2 before we decide whether to include them in a lien 3 sale or not and that would be extremely 4 problematic.

CHAIRPERSON VANN: You guys have impressed me with your intellect and professionalism. I can't imagine you can't solve that minor problem. What is the current enrollment of SCHE by the way?

12

DAVID M. FRANKEL: Of SCHE? Do we have a number? I don't know the number. I'm sorry.

15

16

CHAIRPERSON VANN: So you wouldn't know how many property owners would be eligible for that program? You wouldn't have any gauge for that?

18

DAVID M. FRANKEL: You mean who are eligible for the program?

19

20

22

DAVID M. FRANKEL: I don't know the number. I certainly don't know the number of properties who would be eligible.

25

CHAIRPERSON VANN: The number that's currently enrolled, does anybody have that number?

DAVID M. FRANKEL: We can get you that.

CHAIRPERSON VANN: That would be good. Sure, go right ahead.

CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: Just to follow up what Al Vann was saying. So in other words, Commissioner Frankel, what you're saying here is it's not your job to try to find out who qualifies for this exemption, that exemption, or who the city could help? My job is just to collect the money and I don't care? That's what you're saying.

10

11

12

13

14

DAVID M. FRANKEL: I think that's a really unfair characterization of what my testimony was, Council Member Recchia.

15

17

CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: That's what you're just saying. The Council Member made it very clear what programs do you have and you say we have to investigate 25,000 properties to see if they qualify. You make it sound like investigate, you have to hire teams. This could be done very simply. Going out there and doing outreach to these properties and telling them what they're qualifying for.

18

20

21

22

23

24

25

2                   You know, who's going to do? It 3 seems like everything is coming to you. They 4 transferred SCRE to you, SCHE, everything is 5 coming to you for collections. Council Members 6 are getting very scared because who is going to be 7 out there telling these people what they're 8 qualified for, what exemptions they could get,
9 what property exemption, what DEP exemptions

10                   There has to be somebody who's 11 going to take the lead on this. You're collecting 12 everything. DEP is going out there trying to come 13 up with the solutions. I know HPD goes out and 14 they have these workshops for communities. I 15 think the Department of Finance has to get onboard 16 with something.

17                   DAVID M. FRANKEL: We already do 18 that.

19                   CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: You just said 20 you don't do that.

21                   DAVID M. FRANKEL: No, I didn't say 22 I didn't do that. We do reach out in all the 23 communities. What I said was that the idea of 24 taking 25,000 individual lien properties and 25 making a determination individually on whether

2 each one of those would qualify for an exemption
3 is extremely problematic. I didn't say we don't 4 do outreach. We want everybody who is qualified 5 for an exemption to get it. So we do this 6 outreach and we do try to work with both Council 7 Members and other elected officials and other 8 groups to make people as aware as possible as to 9 what the potential exemptions are.

10 CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: DEP last year
11 sent out a notice to all property owners asking 12 them if they think they qualify for all these 13 different programs. They got back a response. By 14 that response, they were able to pull back 15 properties from lien sales. So if DEP could do 16 it, I think the Department of Finance could 17 certainly do it.

18 DAVID M. FRANKEL: I keep on saying 19 that we go out and we meet in the community. We 20 send notice to people. We try to get people into 21 whatever programs we possibly can. But what I 22 will say, again, is I can't be responsible for 23 taking 25,000 potential applicants and going 24 through and reaching out and asking them for all 25 their income applications. Every year, we send

10 11 12
13
14
15
16
17
18 19 20
21
22
23
24
25

out an annual notice of ever exemption that you might qualify for. That's what we do.

CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: Do you have a copy of that? Could you send it to us?

DAVID M. FRANKEL: Sure.

CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: Sent it to Tanisha Edwards?

DAVID M. FRANKEL: Absolutely.

CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: I have colleagues who want to ask questions. They have to move on. There are many hearings today. We're going to start off with Council Member Lew Fidler. I just want every Council Member to keep in mind that we have to be out of here by 1:00 and we have like six Council Members to ask questions and then Council Member Al Vann and I will follow up. Council Member Lew Fidler?

COUNCIL MEMBER FIDLER: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I have to be out of here at 11:30, so I'll try and be really brief. First, I want to say and you actually raised the issue, the Finance Department and DEP have done many, many outreach efforts in my district. I know we're doing another one on Tuesday at a senior citizen.

2 They've been terrific. I want to start by 3 thanking both commissioners for that, because I 4 can't tell you how many of my constituents have 5 received benefits and worked out water bill 6 problems because you've come to my neighborhood.
7 So I do appreciate it.

8                   CASWELL F. HOLLOWAY: Council 9 Member, I just wanted to jump in because I want to 10 make sure that there is clarity here. Finance and 11 DEP work very closely together on all the stuff 12 that we do. I think that we want to make sure 13 that we're all talking about the same thing in 14 terms of the level. We don't do testing of 15 everybody. Our own internal testing of everybody 16 who might be eligible for an exemption, we and 17 Finance let people know what those potential 18 exemptions are and we want them to come and tell 19 us. I can tell you, we do these events together.
20 We share best practices. So I want to make sure 21 we're getting full credit for the amount of 22 outreach that's actually happening out there.

23                   COUNCIL MEMBER FIDLER: In my 24 district, I give you both full credit. I think 25 you've been an enormous resource and I want to

2 start by saying thank you. Now, Commissioner, I'm 3 not going to be so appreciative. You'll notice 4 that my name is not one of the many, many sponsors
5 on this bill. It's not because I don't recognize 6 the important issue of collecting all revenue from 7 people who can pay and protecting those who can't.
8 I think Chairman Vann put it perfectly. There's a 9 balance to be struck here.

10 I remember in 2007, which may have 11 been prior to your watch, I'm not sure. When we 12 passed the water lien authorization, this Council 13 was promised that water rates would not be going 14 up immediately. Now, next to snow removal and pot 15 holes, my office hears more about the water rates 16 than any other thing. People do not understand.
17 They constantly think the City Council is raising 18 this revenue, raising their rates, nickel and 19 diming, drip, drip, drip money out of their 20 pocket. It seems that every bill they get there's 21 another rate increase. That's the way it appears 22 to my constituents.

23 I will say to you that in your 24 various testimonies, I heard the numbers $285 25 million and I heard the number $300 million that

2 has been generated from standalone water lien 3 legislation. During that same period of time, the 4 Water Board has paid to the General Fund probably 5 about $350 million or $360 million in rent. Yet, 6 we continue to have this nontransparent tax that 7 no one is voting for.

8           You addressed the relationship 9 between water lien sales and water rates a number 10 of times in your testimony. I'd like to know 11 right now, Commissioner, if we passed this bill, 12 what can I tell my constituents? Do you have 13 another water rate increase coming down the pike 14 in the next couple of weeks? Or is enough enough?

15           CASWELL F. HOLLOWAY: Well, a lot
16 of issues there. First, in terms of transparency, 17 I just want to point out one of the things we've 18 focused on, certainly in the last 14 months, is 19 being a lot more transparent about exactly what 20 DEP uses its revenues to do. If you go onto our 21 website, www.nyc.gov/dep, there is a presentation 22 that I gave in all five boroughs and to the Water 23 Board that explains cost by cost exactly what last 24 year's water rate was based on.

25           The projected increase last year

2 was 14.3 percent. We initiated an immediate 3 across the board 8 percent expense budget cut.
4 That rate increase came in at 12.9 percent. The 5 latest public projection and we have to do this 6 project in our offering statements is that the 7 potential increase for the coming year would 9.8
8 percent.

9                   Now, it was initially projected 10 when we made the rate increase last year at 12.9
11 percent. We're doing another 8 percent budget 12 cut. So we've gone from 12.9 to 9.8 in the 13 published forecast. I can tell you as 14 Commissioner, every single day I am working to 15 make sure that whatever the increase will be, it 16 is going to be as low as possible. Having this 17 authority, certainly is going to help us to get as 18 low as possible.

19                   Now, I think it is important, 20 between 2007 and now, to understand exactly some 21 of the reasons why that rate has had to go up.
22 You made reference to the $330 million to the 23 city. We've done a comprehensive rate study of 56
24 jurisdictions in this country. There's like a 5 25 percent payment that's called this rental payment.

2 It's an intergovernmental payment to the City of 3 New York. It's actually below the average that 4 every major utility in the country pays to the 5 municipal government as an intergovernmental 6 charge. Even if you take--

7 COUNCIL MEMBER FIDLER:

8 [interposing] In other municipalities, the water
9 is not necessarily a government entity, right? So 10 it would be a private enterprise. So that 11 wouldn't make it intergovernmental right?

12 CASWELL F. HOLLOWAY: Many of them
13 are public. There's public and private. I'm 14 saying across the 56, for all the 56 largest 15 municipalities in this country, New York City's 16 payment is below average.

17 The reason that water rates have 18 gone up as much as they have in the last three 19 years is because right now we have $11 billion in 20 construction and $3 billion in design. Most of 21 those are projects that are currently in 22 construction that are mandated by the federal 23 government.

24 For example, we have a $3 billion
25 filtration plant in the Bronx that I know people

2 are well aware of. That is mandated to be 3 completed by 2013. At the same time, by the same 4 year, we have to complete a $2 billion ultra 5 violet disinfection plant in Kensico. We also 6 have to complete, basically by 2013, a $5 billion 7 reconstruction of the Newtown Creek wastewater 8 treatment plant.

9           This is because judges in federal 10 courts have told us that we have to do these 11 projects on these timelines because the 12 enforcement mentality at the regulator level is we 13 don't really care about the big picture, what we 14 care about is what are the 50 milestones that you 15 have to hit and the dates that you're going to hit 16 them on.

17           Now, the good news is, as bad as 18 that is, we are projecting that the percentage of 19 the city's capital program for DEP that's going to 20 be government mandated is going to drop going 21 forward from what was like 79 percent to 34 22 percent. I've gone to Washington three times in 23 this year alone to meet with EPA. I've gone to 24 Albany many times.

25           The green infrastructure plan that

2 the Mayor proposed in September of last year would 3 save $2.4 billion in DEP costs over the next 20 4 years if we can get DEC and EPA to agree that we 5 can do green infrastructure and the gray tanks and 6 tunnels that you would put underground. So 7 another mandated project we're about to cut the 8 ribbon on is a half billion dollar, 50 million 9 gallon tank, in Paerdegat Basin in Brooklyn.

10 COUNCIL MEMBER FIDLER: I think I'm 11 familiar with that.

12 CASWELL F. HOLLOWAY: We're doing a 13 level of construction right now--

14 CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: [interposing]
15 Commissioner, can we just get back to the lien 16 sales.

17 CASWELL F. HOLLOWAY: Sure.

18 CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: We don't need 19 to hear about DEP's doings. Let's save it for 20 some other day.

21 COUNCIL MEMBER FIDLER: I guess we 22 can say damn the activist judges, right. But the 23 fact of the matter is this is an issue. But I 24 guess I'm just venting a grudge that I'm holding 25 from 2007 when I felt that we were lied to by the

2 Administration about water rates.

The fact of the matter is the constituents complain to me. They complain to my colleagues. I think what you've just told us that we can expect a 10 percent water rate increase this year. I think you're assuming that we're going to extend the authorization when we do that. That's very bad news to taxpayers in the City of New York.

I hear your theory but I don't really accept the rent payment issue as an intergovernmental payment that's necessary. Every penny that goes to that rent payment is, in fact, a tax to the General Fund that no one here is getting to vote on. It's a tax that's under the control of the New York City Water Board and the Administration. It's got to end.

I have just one other quick thing. Commissioner Frankel, I didn't understand some of the numbers that you gave us on the defaults and payment plans. Are you saying that 63 percent of those who enter into a payment plan default?

DAVID M. FRANKEL: Yes.

25

COUNCIL MEMBER FIDLER: So wouldn't

2 that be an indication that Council Member Vann may 3 be correct that a means test would make some 4 sense? I mean you don't want anyone to default, 5 right? You want to enter into a payment plan that 6 people are going to be able to meet so that you
7 don't have to monitor defaults. So you can accept 8 the payments as they go, right?

9 DAVID M. FRANKEL: Right. Those 10 payment plans already stretch out over eight 11 years. I mean the answer is, right, I would love 12 to have everybody fulfill their payment plan.

13 COUNCIL MEMBER FIDLER: When 14 someone approaches you for a payment plan, do you 15 have the kind of dialogue that your field 16 representatives have engaged in with my 17 constituents to make sure before they enter into 18 the payment plan that they were eligible for every 19 exemption and benefit that they could possibly 20 have?

21 DAVID M. FRANKEL: Yes. Let me say 22 this: the answer is yes, I hope that happens in 23 every conversation. I can't guarantee it happens 24 in every conversation but that's what's supposed 25 to happen.

COUNCIL MEMBER FIDLER: Would you have a problem if this legislation mandated that it happen in every conversation?

DAVID M. FRANKEL: I mean other than a general objection about mandating things like that I mean.

COUNCIL MEMBER FIDLER: I mean, come on, Commissioner, you've just told me that you hope it happens, you think it happens. I understand there are many requirements in this bill, like the certified mail thing, that in the practical world don't make sense and aren't, I don't think, good ideas. But you just said this is something you hope you're doing anyway. I would think if your staff knew that they had to, they would make sure they did it. Maybe you'd have fewer defaults and we'd have fewer matters going into the program.

DAVID M. FRANKEL: It could be. I just will tell you that I have a general--I hear what you're saying and I certainly agree with the spirit of what you're saying. The idea that we would be violating a law by someone either forgetting or deliberately not having that conversation troubles me.

COUNCIL MEMBER FIDLER: It would trouble me more that they went into default on a payment plan and had to have the lien sold. So, again, we're striking a balance here, Commissioner. You've got to come part of the way here. I think that's an extremely reasonable thing in terms of a mandate upon your agency that probably shouldn't cost you any money because you're already engaging the constituent in the conversation about the payment plan.

DAVID M. FRANKEL: I'm trying to work with you. I agree with you in spirit. I'm not crazy about the mandating, but it's not something that we would jump up and down about it.

COUNCIL MEMBER FIDLER: Well, if the spirit is willing, we just have to get the flesh there.

CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: Thank you very much. Council Member Diana Reyna is next.

COUNCIL MEMBER REYNA: Thank you. Thank you, Mr. Chairs. I just wanted to also just echo my appreciation to both agencies. All three agencies actually, HPD as well as DEP and the

2 Department of Finance, because we've had the one-3 on-one counseling and presentations of not just 4 benefits but the opportunity for one-to-one 5 assistance in making sure that if any 6 homeowner/tenant in combination or separate is in 7 need of any assistance, that we were able to do 8 that at a very local level.

9           We tried to accomplish that two 10 times a year. I wish we could do it every other 11 month or even possibly every month. But the 12 amount of work that goes into it doesn't begin to 13 express how interagency cooperation is the number 14 one reason why they function. I look forward to 15 further of those counseling opportunities for my 16 constituency base.

17           At the moment, I want to just 18 understand, and this question is more related to 19 HPD. Commissioner Cestero, I want to congratulate 20 you and thank you for your years of service in 21 government. Hopefully we get an understanding as 22 to moving forward your ability to leave the agency 23 with an oversight mechanism that will allow us to 24 deal with the HDFCs of the City of New York.
25 Recognizing, not that this is any news to you or

2 the agency, that these are the most, if not the 3 only, affordable units out there that exist today.
4 Preserving them is so critical.

5           At the moment in City Limits
6 magazine, a studio in Williamsburg is costing 7 $2,300, from a time ten years ago when it was just 8 costing $500. It is just astronomical to think 9 that a market can drive housing expenses to the 10 point where ten-fold is the expense today in 11 comparison to ten years ago. We're considered to 12 be the most expensive town in the Borough of 13 Brooklyn.

14           So I want to just express to you 15 how I am concerned moving forward. You're almost 16 the institutional memory behind a lot of the 17 discussions we've had in the past concerning 18 oversight. I know you've had difficulties in 19 trying to see how you can provide oversight.
20 What's going to continue to happen is that the 21 lien sales of the HDFCs are just going to grow.
22 They're not going to decline.

23           I do want to deal with the ERPs and 24 we're, as a local legislator, trying to do one-on-25 one outreach to these property owners, whether

2 they're on the HDFC list or the ERP list. I have 3 24 properties in the HDFC qualifying for liens, 4 and I have 13 qualifying for ERPs. If you can 5 just give me your comment on the oversight manner
6 in which HPD will now take into effect any policy, 7 any staffing, any new protocols, but addressing it 8 once and for all.

9                   RAFAEL E. CESTERO: Sure. I
10 appreciate the question. Council Member, as you 11 know, this has been one of the biggest issues that 12 we've focused on at HPD over the last several 13 years. One of the very first things that I did 14 when I came back to HPD as commissioner was 15 create, for the first time ever in HPD, a 16 Department of Asset Management, led by Deputy 17 Commissioner Anne-Marie Hendrickson, who is here.

18                   She has put together a terrific 19 team of people who, for the first time ever, are 20 performing the kind of regulatory oversight that 21 you speak about, across all 300,000 units that 22 City of New York has invested in over the last 30-23 35 years.

24                   As you know, HPD has been one of 25 the primary vehicles for helping properties be

2 renovated, brought up to standard, returning in 3 rem stock that was taken during the 70s and 80s
4 back to neighborhoods and back to affordable 5 housing. We needed to get up to speed quickly on 6 our regulatory oversight so that we can do the 7 kind of review that's necessary to understand 8 what's happening in properties that are showing 9 some kind of physical or financial distress.

10           So Anne-Marie and her team have put 11 together an extensive protocol for how we are 12 going to reach out to HDFCs that are showing 13 financial arrears. As you know, this piece of 14 legislation provides for a one-year period before 15 the HDFC would actually come into the lien sale.
16 We think that's a smart thing. We think that's a 17 way for us to notify the HDFCs that their 18 municipal arrears are due but give them a year to 19 work with us so that we can look at ways in which 20 we can put the resources that we have within our 21 control at our agency to bear to help resolve the 22 financial difficulties that those HDFCs have.

23           One other point that I would make 24 on this, and I think it's really important, is 25 that many of these HDFCs, we have had some role in

2 over the last 35 years and we know who they are 3 and we know them and we work with them on a day in 4 and day out basis. Some of them we don't. Fully 5 one-third of these are HDFCs that were created in 6 the private market that we don't have any other 7 regulatory oversight over at all.

8           This bill, providing us the trigger 9 in the lien sale gives us the ability to bring 10 those folks in and have a conversation with them 11 and understand what's going on in their buildings.

12           COUNCIL MEMBER REYNA: I appreciate 13 your forthcoming on your endeavor in creating the 14 department and Anne-Marie has been very diligent 15 in just taking on specific dialogue, especially 16 with local neighborhood preservation corporations 17 that are coming forward and just expressing some 18 of the on the ground feel for what's happening.

19           I want to just make note that the 20 restrictive sale agreements that we once upon a 21 time spoke of is something that we have to begin 22 again reigniting, as far as making sure that we're 23 preserving the HDFC co-op sales. I know that the 24 co-ops have been removed from the list, which is 25 very appreciative, but we still have that oversight mechanism missing.

My last comment, I'm one of the co-sponsors of this particular bill, but I'm concerned with a lot of what has been mentioned regarding the cost of the return that is so little in trying to impose a lot of this, so the fiscal impact. I know there were some numbers being thrown around by each department of how much this is going to cost.

What are some of the recommendations that you see as a department trying to balance and reduce the cost of trying to work with the Council in implementing this type of legislation?

JOHN GRATHWOL: I think that I'd be happy to share with you and your staff how we got the cost estimates that I talked about earlier today. I think it would be fair to say the Administration is very interested in working with you to address these concerns that have been raised by some of the proposals in the bill that we find difficult. I'm sure if we put our minds together we can find ways of addressing those concerns that do not create some of the problems we have with these specific proposals.

COUNCIL MEMBER REYNA: I look forward to those discussions, Mr. Chair, both committees. Thank you very much.

CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: Thank you, Council Member Diana Reyna. Council Member Brewer is next.

COUNCIL MEMBER BREWER: I, of course, second the HDFC issue. Unfortunately, I have that list that you're not supposed to have anything to do with, but we'll keep talking about it. I should know this, but Council Member Vann mentioned that a certain percentage you have that you can't collect from. How many of those, particularly the single-family, have mortgages or don't have mortgages? Is everybody's mortgage paid off?

JOHN GRATHWOL: I'm not quite sure what numbers we're talking about.

COUNCIL MEMBER BREWER: We understand that there's a certain percentage that you can't collect from. Council Member Vann mentioned it and you've mentioned it, you can't collect the property taxes.

2 JOHN GRATHWOL: Property tax is 98
3 percent of the properties pay their property 4 taxes.

5 COUNCIL MEMBER BREWER: Those who 6 don't and those who we're concerned about in terms 7 of the potential lien, we're trying to think of 8 the percentage of people who could be hurt because 9 they're going to lose their property one way or 10 another. It could be property, it could be water.
11 Many times the person who holds the mortgage ends
12 up paying some of these bills. I'm just wondering 13 if there is any correlation between the two.

14 JOHN GRATHWOL: I don't know the 15 answer to that question.

16 COUNCIL MEMBER BREWER: So we don't 17 know, of those who are potentially in this lien 18 pool, some of the HDFCs, the single-families, et 19 cetera, or the seniors. Do any of these 20 properties, are they mortgaged or are they free of 21 a mortgage?

22 JOHN GRATHWOL: I don't know. I
23 mean I assume some of them are mortgaged although 24 the mortgager would generally pay your taxes to 25 make sure that a lien is not put against the

2 property. So that would be the first thing that 3 may put the property into default if the person is 4 not paying on their mortgage. Then you'd have a 5 different issue with the mortgager.

6 COUNCIL MEMBER BREWER: The reason
7 I mention that is because if you're in the home 8 and you're dealing with a mortgage company and 9 you're dealing with the property tax issue and you 10 have dementia, you definitely are not able to put 11 all the pieces together.

12 JOHN GRATHWOL: I completely
13 appreciate that. But if you have a mortgage, then 14 generally your mortgager is going to pay those 15 taxes and liens for you. As I said, you may wind 16 up in a different situation with the fact that you 17 may not be able to pay the debt service on your 18 mortgage.

19 COUNCIL MEMBER BREWER: So mainly 20 the people we're dealing with perhaps do not have 21 a mortgage, it's already paid off or you don't 22 know?

23 JOHN GRATHWOL: That's my guess,
24 but I can't give you an answer.

25 COUNCIL MEMBER BREWER: It has some

2 relevance I think to the discussion. The other
3 question I have is the website for the Department
4 of Finance; do you ever do focus groups for it?
5 Because when you go there, it is hard,
6 particularly if you're not savvy, to actually see 7 the word property tax information is here, as 8 opposed to some of the other toggles that you 9 have. Has anybody ever done some focus groups on 10 that?

11                   DAVID M. FRANKEL: We haven't done 12 specific focus groups, although we've reached out 13 to a lot of people. I happen to agree with you 14 that our website is not as user friendly.

15                   COUNCIL MEMBER BREWER: I just used 16 it again, and it takes a little bit of ingenuity 17 to get to my block and lot, which I don't know.
18 So you go to the address. By the way, the address 19 thing isn't working right now.

20                   DAVID M. FRANKEL: That's just a 21 terrific--

22                   CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: [interposing]
23 Word of advice, Commissioner, if I was you, I 24 would sit down with Council Member Brewer. She 25 can be very, very helpful.

2 COUNCIL MEMBER BREWER: My last
3 question is sometimes just regular old organizing 4 works, particularly for the HDFCs. The issue
5 there would be to try to. I know that your Asset
6 Management does a great job at HPD, but just plain 7 old bringing them in, even before any year is up, 8 because all of them need a lot of assistance.
9 Thank you very much. I'll let it go at that.

10 CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: I just follow
11 up on one thing. This City Council has met with 12 the powers to be and DEP and other people. We are 13 trying so hard to get banks to work with us 14 because banks collect the taxes for people that 15 have mortgages. We would love for the banks to 16 collect the water charge. DEP is willing to work 17 with us, but it's the banks that are not being 18 cooperative. So I just want you to know we are 19 looking into that.

20 If the banks could collect the 21 water charges, like they collect the tax, I 22 believe that could save us a lot of money. So we 23 are looking into that, Council Member Brewer.
24 Leroy Comrie is next.

25 CASWELL F. HOLLOWAY: That actually happened, I believe.

CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: Years ago.

CASWELL F. HOLLOWAY: Now it's the variability of the charge that creates the biggest issue, is our understanding, but we're certainly willing to work with you on it.

CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: Thank you.

Council Member Leroy Comrie?

COUNCIL MEMBER COMRIE: Thank you, Mr. Chair. Why doesn't DEP take Visa online?

CASWELL F. HOLLOWAY: Don't we offer credit card?

COUNCIL MEMBER COMRIE: Why is Visa the only credit card that's not being taken online by DEP?

CASWELL F. HOLLOWAY: If we're not offering Visa, I'll find out the reason.

COUNCIL MEMBER COMRIE: Finance and parking violations and every other agency is offering.

CASWELL F. HOLLOWAY: I will get the reason and get back to you. If there's anything we can do about it, we will.

COUNCIL MEMBER COMRIE: Okay.

2                   DAVID M. FRANKEL: Let me just make 3 one comment in answer to that.

4                   COUNCIL MEMBER COMRIE: Okay.

5                   DAVID M. FRANKEL: The Mayor has 6 put forward a program to really consolidate all 7 these collection agencies. Finance is actually 8 responsible for that program. One of the things 9 that you're pointing out is that we have many 10 agencies that have different policies about credit 11 cards and other things. We think there should be 12 a centralized function to that where we can do it 13 with best practices and everything else and we'd 14 accept whatever credit cards make sense. I mean 15 it depends on what the fees that they charge are 16 and you negotiate those fees.

17                   At some point in the next year or 18 two, we hope that this is all a centralized 19 function and you wouldn't have to ask that 20 question of every agency, you could just ask it of 21 us.

22                   COUNCIL MEMBER COMRIE: When you go 23 online now to pay your water bill and you go in 24 the pay your bill section, for whatever reason 25 that's not an option. It also doesn't give you

2 the opportunity to get the discount if you don't 3 have that option. I don't understand why the 4 option is only tied into the checking for the 5 deduction for the rate on the water bill as 6 opposed to doing an automatic deduction.

I think that's another thing. Most 8 people are used to doing the automatic deduction
9 now. When I do pay my bills, I do pay them online 10 most of the time. I was surprised when I went to 11 pay my water bill the other day. I want to thank 12 the staff for chasing me down to make sure I paid 13 it before today's meeting.

14

CASWELL F. HOLLOWAY: Thank you.

15

COUNCIL MEMBER COMRIE: I just want 16 to say that your DEP outreach staff has been 17 admirable. I have been doing the meetings even 18 before I got elected, having the community 19 meetings to have both DEP and Finance come out to 20 the local center and to churches in the district.
21 Not everybody has internet access, so we can do 22 even more outreach. I was just confused as to why 23 that's not being offered. I hope that that is 24 cleaned up.

25

I don't understand why any bank or

2 any credit card agency would refuse the City of 3 New York's entrees to get a fair and reasonable 4 rate to get to do business with New York City
5 residents. So I would hope that those issues 6 could be cleaned up.

CASWELL F. HOLLOWAY: We'd love to 8 use you to negotiate our credit card contracts.

COUNCIL MEMBER COMRIE: I'll be 10 happy to come and do that. I just have a question 11 on some of these rates. It looks like most of the 12 average liens run about $4,000 to $7,000. How 13 long a period is that over for the average lien
14 rates on most of the properties? Sorry, let me 15 re-ask the question, because I just got told these 16 are our numbers that we developed.

17

Your average lien number that 18 you're going to do on when you're getting ready to 19 put to lien sale is what number? What approximate 20 number?

21

JOHN GRATHWOL: I don't know what 22 the number is for property taxes, but we can get 23 that for you.

24

CASWELL F. HOLLOWAY: For water,
25 it's about just over $5,000.

10 11 12
13
14
15
16
17
18 19 20
21
22
23
24
25

COUNCIL MEMBER COMRIE: $5,000.

That's over a one-year period or a two-year period?

CASWELL F. HOLLOWAY: That's for one year and more than $1,000.

COUNCIL MEMBER COMRIE: I didn't understand the objection from going from $1,000 number to a $2,000 number when you talked about the ability of the city before they enacted a lien rate. If the average is $5,000, I don't understand the concern.

CASWELL F. HOLLOWAY: Two things. The proposal that's in the draft is $2,000 and two years. So the additional time means that first and immediately, right now there are about 16,000 properties that are eligible for the lien sale. That would drop to 2,000 because most of those would age for another year. During that year, whatever their debt is, whether it's $1,001 or $5,000, we believe that it's just going to continue to accrue because you've basically taken away the incentive for the person to come in say I want to work with DEP or Finance to address this problem, enter into a payment plan, find out if

2 I'm eligible for any exemptions. We totally agree 3 with doing increased outreach.

4 So the issue is any threshold that 5 increases the amount of debt and certainly 6 increases the amount of time, we think ultimately 7 will make it less likely that someone will be able 8 to come and enter into a successful payment plan 9 with us and get started on dealing with this.

10 When you look at some of the 11 specifics, and we have a lot of data on the number 12 of payment plans and the way we work it out, 13 sometimes people start with a down payment that's 14 as low as 10 percent. What we want is incentives 15 for people to come in as soon as possible and 16 either pay, because 87 percent pay before the 17 sale, or tell us what's going on, work with us to 18 put a plan in place or find out if they qualify 19 for an exemption.

20 COUNCIL MEMBER COMRIE: You said
21 you have multiple opportunities for people for 22 exemptions. How is that promulgated among your 23 staff or to the public so that they can know what 24 those options are? Most of the times when a 25 person has a water lien, they're also in general

2 debt and in foreclosure debt. If it's not 3 foreclosure debt, then they're in a problem with 4 their bills across the board. So what is being 5 done to incentivize them to pay and how is that 6 outreach being promulgated among your staff so 7 that they can be aware of it? That would be both 8 to Finance and DEP.

9           CASWELL F. HOLLOWAY: Both of our 10 agencies, and we do a lot of these together. I 11 mean we do a lot of outreach throughout the year, 12 leading up, and this isn't just because there's a 13 lien sale coming. We sit with customer service 14 representatives and we resolve problems right 15 there in communities. But at the time of the year 16 that the lien sale starts, certainly we send out 17 notifications and we let people know what 18 exemptions are available and we encourage them to 19 get in touch with us so that we can get them 20 qualified.

21           I mean from my perspective, if 22 somebody is eligible for an exemption, we want 23 them to get it. One of the questions that Council 24 Member Reyna asked was what are some of the issue 25 that we have a problem with, and when you look at

2 things like the 120 days versus the 90 days, we 3 think on balance that most people come in between 4 60 and zero, and a third of them come in between 5 day ten and day zero. So that extra 30 days way 6 out there just starts this process earlier but 7 it's not really going to have a measurable impact 8 on people.

9 What we need is targeted outreach
10 to people as this process works through. I think 11 what Commissioner Frankel described was what DEP 12 does as well, continuous updating of lists and 13 outreach targeted to these families to say come 14 in, pay your bill or work with us.

15 COUNCIL MEMBER COMRIE: Is there 16 early payment incentives or just other incentives 17 to give people an opportunity to get their bills 18 covered? Are you waiving interest or accruals or 19 is that a possibility?

20 DAVID M. FRANKEL: There are 21 incentives to pay your property taxes early.

22 COUNCIL MEMBER COMRIE: Right.

23 DAVID M. FRANKEL: But not for 24 delinquent property tax owners to come in and get 25 a deal at that point. When you think about what

2 we're talking about, we're talking about for the 3 most--look, I appreciate that. What we're mainly 4 focused on here is the most vulnerable of our 5 society. But the lien sale itself essentially 6 forces a lot of people who should have paid, who 7 could have paid to pay. That's the vast majority 8 of the 25,000 properties that get noticed for the 9 lien sale. That's the ownership that we're 10 talking about.

11                   Then with respect to others, when 12 you come into the lien sale, when you work out a 13 payment plan with us, we don't waive penalties and 14 interest, but as I said, we will stretch a payment 15 plan out over eight years. We will work on what 16 the down payment should be. Even then, as I point 17 out, there are a lot that go into default.

18                   As some point, people need to pay 19 what they owe, at some point. We could stretch 20 that out for as long as we possibly can, but I 21 don't have the authority to waive the requirement 22 that someone pay their property tax or their water 23 lien. I suggest that I shouldn't have that 24 authority and I'm glad I don't have that 25 authority. It would be easily abused if someone had that authority.

But we will work with anybody to the best of our ability to give them the most affordable plan. There are times when it turns out that somebody simply can't and we understand that.

COUNCIL MEMBER COMRIE: Okay.

Thank you. Did you want to say something? It seemed like you did. Thank you, Mr. Chair.

CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: Thank you.

As I sit here and I hear Commissioner Frankel, you testify about people paying. You said the magic word: could have paid, should have paid. I think a lot of people, if they could, they would really pay. Obviously there are many times that people are having trouble paying.

So when they come in, what do you take into consideration to figure out a payment plan?

DAVID M. FRANKEL: Let me repeat again, that the vast majority of people who are noticed for the lien sale come in and pay what they owe. They are mostly people who have been trying to put off for as long as possible paying their obligations.

With respect to the people who are in financial distress, we will come in and we will talk to them about what they can afford, what they can't afford. We will talk to them about what we can possibly offer them. We will stretch that out for as long as we possibly can. We will work with them on what an appropriate down payment is.

With respect, we are as concerned, I believe we are as concerned about those people as the members of the Council.

CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: Where does it state what you take into consideration when you're trying to determine a payment plan? So if someone was to go on your website, where would they see everything that you said? We couldn't find it.

DAVID M. FRANKEL: You won't find it on the website.

CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: I think that's important for people to know that you're willing to take into consideration that you work out a payment plan. And when you do, that you will take into consideration how much money they're making, what kind of financial distress

2 they're in, what problems they're having, maybe
3 medical problems they're having and so forth. I 4 think that's the problem. People out there are 5 not aware that they could come in and that you're 6 willing to help them with this payment plan.
7 Nowhere could we find it in the rules exactly what 8 it was. Like, how much you have to put for a down 9 payment.

10                   According to my research, you 11 always take 10 percent or 15 percent down payment?

12                   DAVID M. FRANKEL: That's probably 13 accurate, yes.

14                   CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: I think 15 that's where we have to really look into this. If 16 someone is in distress and having problems, maybe 17 the down payment should be less and we could work 18 with them. I just feel that it's so stringent, 19 the 10 or 15 percent, that if we would just adjust 20 that we could really make this work.

21                   DAVID M. FRANKEL: I appreciate 22 your ideas and I'm happy to talk to you about 23 them. You're right, it does not appear anywhere 24 on our website. I have some concerns but that but 25 I hear what you're saying.

2 CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: Or in the 3 rules. So we would have to work on that with you 4 to figure it out.

5 DAVID M. FRANKEL: Fine.

6 CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: Okay.

7 DAVID M. FRANKEL: I'm told that at 8 times we offer a zero percent down payment.

9 CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: What times
10 are those? My constituents want to know.

11 DAVID M. FRANKEL: We'll get back
12 to you with a discussion.

13 CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: Al Vann wants
14 to jump in. Go ahead, Al.

15 CHAIRPERSON VANN: We're going to 16 close out. Thank you very much, Chairman Recchia.
17 First of all, I want to thank all of your 18 gentlemen from coming and your time. You 19 testimony has been very, very helpful.

20 I would like to close by indicting 21 that, as you indicated, the lien sale is an 22 important mechanism of getting people to pay. I 23 understand that. I would admit that probably in 24 that process, those who pay in the very end, other 25 than a handful that may know how to game the

2 system, are people who can't afford to pay and 3 they pay at the end because they're robbing Peter 4 to pay Paul. I would suggest to you that these 5 are the people that become imperiled to the 6 predatory lenders. I would remind you it's the 7 predatory lending, along with Wall Street greed 8 that led to the greatest financial crisis since 9 the Great Depression.

10 I would also remind you that the 11 complexity that you speak of, I'm not buying it.
12 I know you can handle that. I've listened to you 13 guys. I know you can handle the complexity of 14 administering whatever reform may come out of this 15 legislation. You're already doing it with the 16 state property tax and you admitted that.

17 I would remind you that the 18 outreach that you talked about and you're doing a 19 good job with, a lot of that came about as a 20 result of Council Members and the community 21 bringing you into play and it got good to you and 22 that's good. From that, payment systems and other 23 things, you've made some changes already within 24 your regulatory system, it came from the 25 experience. We applaud that. We think that that is good.

I do not buy the argument and I really take issue with the argument that if this small group that's not paying is going to cost the good paying citizens. They're going to have to pick up that slack. You tried to build that schism there. We're not going to go for that schism. Again, those who cannot afford to pay and have a problem, these are the people we have to work with and I know that we will.

As long as we make that distinction between those who can't and those that won't, I think we will be okay.

Having said all of that, I want to again thank you very much. I'm sure we'll continue to work together so that you'll be supportive of this legislation. Thank you, gentlemen.

CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: I want to introduce Melissa Mark-Viverito. Before you guys go, I just want to say one thing. I just want to thank Rafael Cestero. I think this is the last hearing. No, we have the budget hearing in March. I just want to thank you. John Grathwol, thank

2 you, from OMB. It's very rare we get OMB to come
3 to the table like this, so we want to thank you.
4 Commissioner Frankel and Commissioner Holloway, 5 thank you, we look forward to working with you and 6 we'll follow up.

7 CHAIRPERSON VANN: That's why we 8 were so gentle today. We don't see you that 9 often.

10 CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: Could you 11 keep somebody from your staffs behind so they 12 could listen to other people testify? Thank you, 13 we really appreciate that.

14 [Pause]

15 CHAIRPERSON VANN: Thank you very 16 much, Commissioner. We're going to call the 17 consortium together as one very significant panel, 18 if I could have your attention, please.

19 [Pause]

20 CHAIRPERSON VANN: We're going to 21 ask if Alexis Iwanisziw. Say that again. That 22 was easy, I could say that. She is from NEDAP.
23 Also we'll have Aisha Baruni from the Queens Legal 24 Services; Oda Friedheim from Legal Aid Society; 25 Judith Goldiner from Legal Aid Society. I've got

2 five so far and I've got a couple more coming. I 3 think we need six altogether. Also, we'll have 4 Laurie Izutsu from South Brooklyn Legal Services; 5 Justin Haines from Legal Services New York City
6 Bronx. We've got six.

7 [Pause]

8 CHAIRPERSON VANN: Ladies and 9 Gentleman, unfortunately, regrettably, we do not 10 have a lot of time. We have your testimony, so we 11 do not want you to read this testimony. We know 12 that you know these issues well. You have advised 13 us during the course of the past couple of years.

14 So we want you to just focus in on 15 anything that you think is most pertinent based on 16 the testimony you have heard. You know what's 17 going on. So we don't want you to read your 18 testimony, but please be as brief as you can and 19 focus on what you think is most important for us 20 to know and hear in response to the testimony
21 you've heard. Go in the order that you...

22 JUDITH GOLDINER: Hello, this is 23 Judith Goldiner from the Legal Aid Society. I'm 24 with really the foremost experts on this issue and 25 I just wanted to really praise the Council's

2 leadership on this. We're really very excited 3 about the bill that you've proposed.

4 I know that Council Member Vann's
5 leadership has played a huge role in making this 6 happen. Also, thanks so much to the other Council
7 Members. We've met a number of times with Council 8 Member Comrie and I appreciate your leadership on 9 this as well and look forward to working with the 10 Council on this issue going forward.

11 Just to lay it out, Alexis from 12 NEDAP is going to talk. She's going to sort of 13 lay forward the background. South Brooklyn Legal 14 Services is going to talk about the exemption 15 issues. Justin Haines, from Bronx Legal Services, 16 is going to talk about the notice requirements.
17 Queens Legal Services is going to talk about the 18 servicers and the fees and interest. Oda 19 Friedheim from Legal Aid is going to talk about 20 the affordability of the payment plans. We're 21 going to keep it brief, I promise.

22 I did want to just say that we're 23 very pleased as well. They will not be addressing 24 this, but on the ERP issue, we're very pleased 25 that the ERP liens are being included because

2 that's an important tool to preserve multifamily
3 housing, which as you know, is a very important 4 priority for all of our organizations. So thanks 5 so much.

6 ALEXIS IWANISZIW: Thank you. My 7 name is Alexis Iwanisziw. I'm here from NEDAP.
8 We're a resource and advocacy center that works 9 with community groups across New York City to 10 promote economic justice in low income communities 11 and communities of color.

12 So, Council Member Vann has given a 13 great overview of the issues with the lien sale so 14 far. I'm not going to repeat what he said
15 throughout this hearing.

16 I just want to draw your attention,
17 if you look in the NEDAP testimony, the last two 18 pages of maps. The very last page will show you a 19 map of the 2010 ten-day notice list for the lien
20 sale and foreclosures in 2009 in New York City.
21 These maps are almost identical. The lien sale is 22 incredibly concentrated in communities of color in 23 New York City.

24 From what we've seen from 25 homeowners in distress calling our office looking

2 for help, the homeowners who get their lien sold 3 are, almost entirely, low income seniors, 4 homeowners who have been in distress with their 5 mortgage and people whose liens should not have 6 been sold, who would have qualified for 7 exemptions.

8           So I just want to draw your 9 attention to this map and thank you again for your 10 leadership with this bill. There are so many 11 important safeguards for New York City homeowners 12 in it. We just have a few suggestions for places 13 where it can be improved.

14           CHAIRPERSON VANN: Thank you.
15 That's a great point, the concentration of that 16 lien sale. That point was not made clearly.
17 Thank you.

18           LAURIE IZUTSU: Hi, I'm Laurie
19 Izutsu from South Brooklyn Legal Services
20 Foreclosure Prevention Project. I think I'm 21 probably going to echo some of the things that 22 have already been raised here.

23           I'm here really to emphasize the 24 importance of the exemptions that they've 25 highlighted today. We are extremely concerned

2 about the granted smaller portion of foreclosures, 3 but particularly the more vulnerable populations
4 that you've mentioned: the elderly and disabled.
5 Some of the things that you've mentioned are that 6 they tend to be people who are unaware of the 7 exemptions available to them.

8 I heard a lot from DEP about how 9 people are very resistant to paying their tax or 10 water charges and that they can afford them. But 11 as you pointed out, we're talking about a smaller 12 portion of people who, because they are senior 13 citizens and/or have a disability, may not have 14 access to the same sort of resources or simply are 15 unaware of them.

16 These are people who because they 17 are living on a fixed income, if they are struck 18 with a significant unexpected expense, such as 19 necessary home repair or an unexpected medical 20 bill, they temporarily will be unable to cover 21 their water charges or their tax liens.

22 So what we're talking about is 23 trying to make sure that the appropriate notices 24 with sufficient explanations reach these people.
25 So that they are able to take advantage of the exemptions that are in place for exactly these populations.

20

One of the things I also wanted to mention, which Alexis pointed out, is that even though this is a small population, they disproportionately comprise the homeowners we see coming to us in foreclosure specifically because of a water or tax lien sale.

I did point out in the testimony but do think it's a point to make note of, even in this past week, we had somebody come to us who was 68 years old and somebody with a disability. He's an amputee. He's a diabetic. He had been his charges consistently and despite that, received a notice for a water bill that was $9,000. He had no idea where this came from.

Despite what DEP was saying about making all sorts of efforts to apprise people of their options, he had actually had contact with DEP and was not availed of the exemptions. So I just want to emphasize that we just really feel it's necessary to have the notices that you've proposed with adequate explanations, but also it should be on the city to proactively identify

2 these populations because they may not have the 3 ability to access this information themselves.

4           Along with that, to have something 5 in place to require the City to purchase those 6 lien sales that are sold erroneously, because we 7 do see this happen consistently. In those cases 8 where those liens should never have been placed on 9 the lien sale list to begin with, it's very 10 important that I think the City take 11 responsibility and make sure that those liens are 12 bought back. Thank you.

13           JUSTIN HAINES: Hi, I'm Justin 14 Haines. I'm the Director of the Foreclosure
15 Prevention Unit at Legal Services NYC Bronx 16 office. I want to speak specifically to the 17 notice requirement.

18           We're talking at something very 19 serious here, which is the possible loss of a home 20 and not just one that's mortgaged but as was 21 pointed out earlier, most oftentimes a home that's 22 fully owned by the homeowner at this point.

23           Within our body of law and our 24 system of justice, both on the state level and the 25 national level, there's this concept of due

1 process which has a component of notice.

3 Currently, the notice provisions only really 4 include as a requirement--although they've stated 5 they've gone beyond their requirements--but as 6 requirements two publications in newspapers: one 7 notice at 90 days and one at 10 days and one 8 notice to the homeowner.

9           We have to think about, given the 10 high stakes of the property interest involved--you 11 know the Constitution says that we're not going to 12 be deprived of our property without due process-- 13 whether this is really fulfilling the due process 14 requirement when we're talking about losing a 15 home.

16           So we really want to applaud this 17 new law because it included two notices as a 18 requirement, one of which has to be sent by 19 certified mail, which seemed to be one of the most 20 contentious elements of the notice component.

21           But when you, by analogy, look at 22 other government action that takes place in say 23 the housing context when NYCHA is going to 24 terminate a Section 8 voucher, which is equally 25 about the home and a property right, they have to

2 send it by certified mail. Part of why you're 3 doing it by certified mail is so that you can have 4 your own assurance, as a department, that that 5 message was sent to the proper place and that it 6 was received by the people.

8 Now, obviously, most people are 9 going to sign and return this because they've had 10 a tremendous success rate in outreach to people, 11 about 87 percent they claimed. But we're talking 12 about this will help us identify the 13 percent 13 who need targeted efforts, the people who you 14 don't get a return receipt for, will be the people 15 that need to be targeted with special efforts.

17 It should just be recognized that 18 even though courts have acknowledge that you can 19 do notice by publication, it's always seen as the 20 weakest form of notice. So here we're just really 21 applauding the strengthening of the notice 22 components and making more meaningful. Currently 23 when someone receives a notice, it really just 24 speaks to them about the block and lot and how 25 much is owed and how to go about paying it. It doesn't really inform people of all the options that exist for them. I think that was pointed out earlier in testimony.

Also, we're increasing the time period for people to get contacted from 90 to 120 days, in this proposed legislation, which is critically important. I want to highlight the fact that for these exemptions, under the current system, there's a deadline to apply by sometime in March.

That means that if we see somebody in April, who is reaching out for help, that exemption will not apply for the current lien sale scheduled in June. Even if it's granted, it will have to apply for the full year after that, over a year later. So a person loses out on a whole year worth of reduced taxes as well as are subject to the upcoming lien sale.

We're here because we're a place of last resort. We're seeing the 13 percent. We know who those people are. They are completely unaware of these exemptions that they can apply for and the consequences of the lien sale, which some of my colleagues will speak about. But from direct experience, it is without a doubt, a doubling of any of the lien charges once it is post-sale and goes into foreclosure.

I just want to say that in addition there was talk about quarterly notices under this amendment. That there would be quarterly notices about the different exemption programs. I think that it would really be up to whether they're already getting bills quarterly, perhaps they can be included. There don't have to be separate mailings, or perhaps that's up to the Council to decide.

I think there are cost saving components that the Administration wasn't really considering. There is a way to integrate some of what they're already doing and some of these new components that are a part of this.

So thank you for the opportunity to speak before you today.

CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: Thank you very much. I'd like to recognize we've been joined by Karen Koslowitz.

AISHA BARUNI: Good morning, my name is Aisha Baruni. I'm a staff attorney with the Foreclosure Prevention Project at Queens Legal Services. Today, I'll be speaking specifically about the interest and fees that are charged on these liens once they're sold.

In our experience, once the tax and water liens are sold, the interest and fees that accrue on the debts, they grow so quickly, even within that first year, that it's impossible for homeowners to get a repayment plan.

We're extremely encouraged by the provision in the proposed bill that appears to reduce the interest rate to 9 percent on these liens for properties that have an assessed value of less than $250,000. We think that this will really assist those homeowners that we see, the low and moderate income homeowners. So we really applaud this. This will really make a tremendous difference.

Next, I just want to quickly discuss the liens that are charged. We are excited to see that the proposed bill contains a requirement that the purchasers must itemize the fees for homeowners. But that doesn't quite get to the heart of the problem, and it could be strengthened just a little bit more to really have a huge impact on the homeowners.

2                   Now the problem is that not only do 3 homeowners not know what fees are being charged, 4 they're not itemized, but the fees are huge. So 5 this language would require the fees be itemized, 6 but those exorbitant fees could still be charged.
7 So what we propose is a requirement that servicers 8 only be permitted to charges fees that are bona 9 fide and reasonable. That will make a tremendous 10 difference.

11                   Also, the fees that are charged, 12 frequently homeowners are told, to the extent 13 they're told, include legal fees associated with a 14 foreclosure action. Those fees, if they were to 15 be awarded by a court in that foreclosure action 16 would typically be governed either by statute or a 17 servicer would have to produce evidence to support 18 the fees that they're asking for.

19                   In the context of fees being 20 charged on these post-sale tax liens, the 21 servicers disregard those limits. They're acting 22 outside of those limits. So in addition to asking 23 that fees that are charged be bona fide and 24 reasonable, we ask that a requirement be put in 25 place that legal fees that are charged be limited to those fees which are reasonable and customary for the work performed. Thank you.

ODA FRIEDHEIM: Good morning. My name is Oda Friedheim. I'm the supervising attorney for Legal Aid's Foreclose Practice. I just want to briefly address the issue of the pre-sale payment plans.

We commend Council Member Vann and all the co-sponsors and City Council staff for having, in fact for the first time in the proposed law, addressed the issue of making payment plans before the sale income-based and affordable.

Now, under the current system, again the homeowners that we are discussing that are the most vulnerable, some of them homebound, some of them not able to go out and actually negotiate or even be knowledgeable that there is such a thing as a 10 percent down payment.

Sometimes they get a bill and they believe they have to pay it all in one swoop. They go to, often an abusive lender, and get themselves into more debt. Or if there is still a mortgage on the house, sometimes we see the mortgage lender just paying the whole thing

2 without the homeowner having had the opportunity 3 to negotiate an affordable repayment plan. That, 4 of course, leads to a whole series of additional 5 problems.

6           The bottom line here is really that 7 a home that is occupied by a low and moderate 8 homeowner or a senior that is lost as a result of 9 unaffordable payments, ultimately to foreclosure, 10 when it could have been avoided, is one home too 11 many. It has been stressed a number of times, the 12 universe we are talking about is small, but it is 13 important.

14           In this foreclosure crisis, we can 15 simply not afford to lose one more home that could 16 have been saved. We all know that a lost home not 17 only affects the family, the children, the 18 neighborhood, the overall economic fabric of that 19 neighborhood and community.

20           We look forward to rules that are 21 going to be promulgated, according to at least the 22 proposed bill, by the Department of Finance in 23 consultation with the DEP. We would hope that the 24 rules reflect great flexibility, that they're 25 income-based, and consider also the household

2 composition plus, where possible, the expenses of 3 that household, and that the approach is extremely 4 flexible to actually make the repayment plan work.

5 But we also want to suggest that 6 perhaps the rules might consider the adoption and 7 expansion of what DEP was earlier testifying 8 about, which is the Water Debt Assistance Program.
9 In a situation where a homeowner can go forward 10 and pay forward going property taxes and water 11 bills, but cannot catch up with their past arrears 12 for whatever reason, that in such a case, the 13 entire amount or perhaps a portion of that amount 14 could not be sold as a lien but be placed on the 15 property to be basically paid off without interest 16 at the point of refinancing, the death of the 17 homeowner or the sale.

18 Again, that program is called the 19 Water Debt Assistance Program. We simply 20 encourage that the rules perhaps adopt that as 21 well where appropriate. Thank you very much.

22 CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: Thank you
23 very much. Anybody else? Thank you all for 24 testifying.

25 JUSTIN HAINES: I apologize. One

2 thing I did want to add is there is no requirement
3 on the notice that it be in multiple languages. I 4 think that one of the issues that I encounter in 5 the Bronx is that there are a lot of monolingual 6 Spanish speakers who are very unaware. The 7 limited English proficiency creates a barrier to 8 understanding their rights and their options. I 9 just wanted to add that. I apologize.

10 CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: Thank you
11 very much.

12 COUNCIL MEMBER BREWER: You're very 13 good.

14 CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: Very good.
15 You want a job with Gale Brewer? She wants to 16 hire you.

17 COUNCIL MEMBER BREWER: Very good.

18 CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: Call the next
19 panel. We're going to have to go to a clock 20 because we have a lot of people that want to 21 testify.

22 COUNCIL MEMBER BREWER: You were 23 fantastic.

24 CHAIRPERSON VANN: Colvin Grannum.
25 I think he left. He's the President of Bed-Stuy

1 Restoration. He is in favor, but he had to leave.
2 Next is Michael Hickey from the Center for NYC
3 Neighborhoods; Imelba Rodriguez from Bridge Street
4 Development Corp. They do an excellent job. I 5 know about them. We also have Moses Gates from 6 ANHD; Bonita Dowling, Pratt Area Community
7 Council. They do good work as well. We also have 8 Catherine Isobe from the Bedford Stuyvesant 9 Community Legal Services.
10

11 We're going to call on you to use 12 your skills because you're going to have to reduce 13 everything that you want to say into two minutes, 14 regrettably. It's not how long you take it's how 15 well you do it. Use your two minutes wisely.

16 [Pause]

17 CHAIRPERSON VANN: You may begin in 18 whatever order you agree upon.

19 MICHAEL HICKEY: Michael Hickey,
20 the Center for NYC Neighborhoods.

21 Look, the thing that really strikes
22 me in this conversation that I don't think we've 23 paid much attention to is the fact that these are 24 securitized debt. This is debt you're selling 25 into the secondary market. It's governed by a

2 pooling and servicing agreement. This would be a 3 public contract. Just like the good banking act 4 that was just introduced, these should be reviewed 5 in public and the contract should really provide 6 provisions to look at all of the components of the 7 contract. How many of these liens can be put 8 back, what are the rules for negotiation, fast 9 tracking, escalation and appeals if you have a 10 problem with a servicer? What limitations on fees 11 should be included in this agreement?

12           These contracts should be built on 13 competitive bidding, not some rate that's set by 14 FIOT. These are people that are willing to 15 purchase bonds. You've got investors who are out 16 there. They should be stepping up to say: look 17 this is the rate that we think is the right rate 18 given the amount of service we're providing.
19 These are service contracts to homeowners. This 20 should not be punitive. It shouldn't be about 21 going out and punishing people. They should be 22 servicing contracts that are provided as a service 23 to homeowners who are trying to make up for debt 24 that's overdue. That really needs to be a process 25 of full negotiation with lots and lots of input.

That's all I want to say.

MOSES GATES: Hello, my name is Moses Gates from the Association for Neighborhood Housing Development. We represent the Community Development Corporation Movement here in New York City. I'd like to specifically address the HDFC part of this particular proposal.

There is a reason HDFCs have been exempt until now from lien sale, and that is because they need to protect the affordability requirements in them. If any of the HDFCs go through the lien sale process and become foreclosed upon, those affordability protections afforded will vanish completely. For HDFC co-ops, they would be left with absolutely no affordability protections and that's why they have been taken out of this bill.

For HDFC rentals, the only protections would be rent stabilization. Rent stabilization laws that are renewing this June 15th, rent stabilization laws that we have no idea how strong or weak they're going to be in the future. You only have to look to the predatory equity crisis to understand that rent

2 stabilization protections are not sufficient 3 affordability protections for our low income 4 population and our affordable housing.

5           So we would argue very greatly to 6 take HDFC rental buildings out of this particular 7 legislation, to not have this lien sold. They 8 have not been sold up until this point in time.
9 We understand the city needs to make sure that 10 these buildings pay their bills as well as other 11 buildings. We here at ANHD put on a lot of 12 trainings to make sure that responsible management 13 happens.

14           The city already has two effective 15 tools in order to transfer these buildings to 16 responsible managers: the third party transfer 17 program, which is for buildings more distressed 18 than in the lien sale, but we would have no 19 objection to putting more of these buildings into 20 the third party transfer program. Many times, the 21 city holds a regulatory agreement or even the 22 mortgage itself on these buildings and is able to 23 initiate as regulator foreclosure, as they're 24 doing with the portfolio in the West Bronx.

25           These are processes that stay under

2 city control and protect the affordability
3 requirements in the HDFC programs, not something 4 that's sold to a separate private investor that 5 threatens those affordability protections.

6 We would be reluctantly more
7 inclined to support the bill if it were made 8 extremely clear that the HDFC rentals, the ability 9 to sell those liens, were only a short-term
10 solution. Something that would sunset March 1st, 11 2013, before the rest of the bill would sunset, in 12 order to try to collect from those overdue
13 properties right now, but not into the future 14 under other administrations with potentially 15 scarce affordability protections regulation.
16 Thank you.

17 CALVIN GRANNUM: Good morning. I
18 hope you can hear me. My name is Colvin Grannum.
19 I'm President of Bedford Stuyvesant Restoration 20 Corporation. My testimony is in support of the 21 proposed Intro 26-A. I've submitted written 22 testimony, so I'll just highlight a few things.

23 First, I want to congratulate 24 Committee Chair Recchia and Committee Chair Vann 25 for the solid work they've done on this bill.

2                   Secondly, I would say that the 3 agencies have been cooperative in many respects
4 and many of the Council Members have recognized 5 that.

6                   I'd like to echo the remarks 7 regarding HDFCs. I was a little bit surprised to 8 hear some of the HDFCs that are not paying the 9 water bills characterized in such a negative 10 light, because it is clearly not true that these 11 property owners are simply snubbing their noses at 12 the city and deciding not to pay.

13                   Many of these properties are 14 greatly distressed. Many of these properties are 15 dependent upon HUD to increase rents in a manner 16 that's consistent with a range of increased costs.
17 Oftentimes, one of the bills that is neglected to 18 be paid is water because some of the others you 19 cannot not pay them and continue to deliver 20 services. So I was a little surprised to hear 21 that. I would echo the comments that say that the 22 rental properties should continue to be outside 23 the scope of the water lien sale.

24                   The next thing that I would like to 25 highlight is owner-occupied four-family houses,

10 11 12
13
14
15
16
17
18 19 20
21
22
23
24
25

which are not currently treated the same as one, two and three-family owner-occupied properties.

Wow that was quick. Is that for me?

In neighborhoods like Bedford Stuyvesant--

CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: [interposing]
We'll give you a little bit of a pass.

CALVIN GRANNUM: I talk to slow.
In neighborhoods like Bedford Stuyvesant, they are tantamount to two or three-family homes because oftentimes that's the only way persons can afford home ownership.

I guess that's all I have time to say but I would say that we know the face of many of the people who have difficulty paying their water bills. It is, again, shocking to me, whether it's HDFCs or individuals, that they would be characterized as people who are intentionally withholding payment and not understood to be people who are facing severe economic distress.

Good afternoon, Chairman Vann, Chairman Recchia and other members of the committee. My name is Catherine Isobe. I'm a

2 staff attorney in Foreclosure Prevention at 3 Bedford Stuyvesant Community Legal Services. Our 4 Managing Director Victor Olds was here earlier, 5 but I'm sorry he had to leave.

6 I want to thank you, first of all,
7 for your perseverance and leadership on this 8 issue. I've been reading over the proposed bill.
9 There is a lot to it and I'm really impressed. I 10 also want to endorse the comments of my colleagues 11 from Legal Services and Legal Aid. I'm not the 12 big expert on this issue, but they've done great 13 work on it and I agree with everything they had to 14 say.

15 The thing that I think we're most 16 gratified by in the bill is that it's going to 17 provide a little more due process and protection 18 for those vulnerable homeowners that you mentioned 19 Chairman Vann.

20 I was just looking at some legal 21 papers from a senior homeowner whose nephew called 22 me this past fall. This person did not lose their 23 home. Their home went into foreclosure with a tax 24 lien and the person had some assets. Perhaps 25 there were some memory problems going on there.

2 But in the process of the case going into 3 foreclosure, there were three sets of attorneys 4 that had to be paid out of this homeowner's 5 assets. The attorneys for the trust that had 6 bought the lien, a guardian ad litem and then an 7 Article 81 guardian that had to be appointed.

8 So, because the person had some 9 liquid assets, they were taken to satisfy the 10 lien, but the amount was perhaps ten times what 11 the actual lien amount was. So, I agree with you, 12 Chairman Vann that I think the city agencies are 13 capable of the level of complexity that's needed 14 to do a little bit more effective outreach to that 15 13 percent. That's all I have to say. Thank you.

16 IMELBA RODRIGUEZ: Good afternoon.
17 My name is Imelba Rodriguez. I'm the 18 Homeownership Services Manager at Bridge Street 19 Development Corporation. I'm going to be very 20 brief.

21 I just want to highlight, as a 22 foreclosure counselor, I see homeowners come into 23 our office every day. One of the biggest things 24 is they're already dealing with foreclosure issue, 25 having to pay their mortgage, but now to also deal

2 with the water lien bills that are very complex
3 for them to even understand. They need a third 4 party to actually walk them through this process 5 as well as for us to outreach to the Department of 6 Finance and DEP to just kind of get an 7 understanding of where their bill is, how did they 8 get that bill so high.

9 Bridge Street actually supports
10 Intro 26-A and believes that remove the disputed 11 charges from the lien sale list, require certified 12 return receipt notification of inclusion on the 13 lien list, expand qualifying exemption categories 14 and require itemization of fees, taxes and 15 interest from servicers is important for 16 homeowners so they can have an idea of what exactly 17 they're seeing and why they are getting this bill.

18 I also want to agree with what was 19 said earlier. These homeowners are not people who 20 are trying to neglect their bills. They're 21 already facing other issues with unemployment, 22 with the foreclosure crisis. I just think that 23 this bill will be a great initiative for them to 24 just continue to have an idea of what they can do 25 and have some sources for them to continue to pay their bill on time. Thank you.

BONITA DOWLING: My name is Bonita Dowling. I am a homeowner counselor at Pratt Area Community Council. I thank you for inviting me here to speak. I also want to thank Councilman Vann. He's always striving to improve the quality of life for all the residents in Bed-Stuy.

I'm a foot soldier and I meet a lot of clients and they have a lot of issues. Of course, one of the issues is the water bill. My job is not to help them with trying to get modifications but try to talk to the people at DEP or some of the other utilities. Fortunately, I was able to and Lee is here to attest to that. I've gotten good contacts there, so some of my clients are not going through what other people are going through.

PAC stands behind you, Councilman, stands behind this bill. What I'm looking for and I know what PAC is looking for it to do is perhaps once you send our your notifications, notify them that community groups like myself, Bridge Street, we're here. Sometimes they need someone to talk with. They need to understand the process.

2 They've had nightmares trying to speak to somebody 3 at DEP, not knowing about lien sales, not knowing 4 if they could make arrangements or something like 5 that. But if you can refer them, that would be 6 great. We can get them into financial literacy
7 classes. I think that's important too.

8 We do commend this and we stand
9 behind you 100 percent. Thank you.

10 CHAIRPERSON VANN: Thank you very 11 much. Your testimony has been very helpful. It 12 emboldened us to go forward with this bill. I 13 appreciate your time. I apologize for the time 14 you had to wait. The last panel and we're going 15 to make our time or they're going to put us out of 16 here.

17 The next panel will be Mary Ann
18 Rothman. She is from the Council of New York
19 cooperatives and Condominiums. Epstein, the first 20 name is either Harvey or Halvey Epstein from the 21 Urban Justice Center, and April Tyler. April had 22 to leave? April hasn't arrived yet, it's only 23 February. Mary Ann Rothman and Mr. Epstein will CHAIRPERSON VANN: Is Epstein here?

All right, you've got it. We're going to give you an additional 30 seconds.

MARY ANN ROTHMAN: And I'm grateful. I don't have written testimony. My name is Mary Ann Rothman. I'm the Executive Director of the Council of New York Cooperatives and Condominiums, which is a membership organization for co-ops and condos in the city and beyond.

I want to congratulate you, Chairman Vann, Chairman Recchia and the committees and the "Lien Team" for a lot of hard work and a very impressive hearing today.

We in co-ops and condos in the city have a strong commitment to the city. We've chosen to make our homes here. We understand the importance of paying our bills on time in order to have the services that we want and need and in order to live in a wonderful city. I think our track record is excellent on being timely payers.

My testimony just is related to a very small detail regarding notification on these tax liens. I'm a little bit concerned about how

2 notification will properly reach condominiums, 3 particularly newish construction self-managed 4 condominiums. As you know, unit owners each 5 receive their own property tax bill, and I'm going 6 to be that they all pay them, but in some cases, 7 particularly in new construction, the tax bill is 8 zero because there are benefits that have accrued 9 from the construction process and payment won't be 10 necessary for several years.

11 The water bill is for the whole 12 building. Small self-managed condos may not even 13 understand their responsibility to pay a water 14 bill. The water bills themselves sometimes have 15 been known to go astray, to be sent to a different 16 block and lot number or sometimes the water bill 17 for the whole building is sent to one individual 18 condo unit owner.

19 We just want to make sure that 20 great care is taken where there appeared to be 21 water liens on condominiums. Please, please find 22 a way to make sure that individuals are contacted 23 and that the water bill has gone appropriately to 24 the people responsible for paying. Thank you.

25 CHAIRPERSON RECCHIA: I want to

2 thank everyone. This bill is still being worked 3 on. We've heard everyone's comments and we'll 4 take everything into consideration. We're going 5 to try to move this forward. Council Member Vann, 6 I want to thank you for your hard work on this.

CHAIRPERSON VANN: Thank you,
8 Chairman; we wouldn't be here without you. Thank 9 everyone who came, who listened, and who 10 participated. Thank you. It's a bill in progress 11 but it's going to come to a conclusion real soon.
12 Thank you.
